Benson 'Supports' Governor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson declared today that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has a better chance than Vice President Richard M. Nixon of being elected president and would in fact win over Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee.

Benson said in a special press statement that Rockefeller "would pull heavily from Republicans, Independents and Democrats and, I strongly believe, he would win."

"SOMEWHAT LIBERAL"

Rockefeller, he added, "would make a great president" even though he "may be somewhat too liberal" on some issues. But, he said, "he should certainly appear on the Republican party's national ticket."

While Benson and Nixon have been at loggerheads over administration farm policy for the past five years, the secretary's announcement came as a political shock.

Benson had refrained from endorsing Nixon but last month he was disclosed to have taken cautious steps toward the vice president's bandwagon.

The secretary indicated at that time that he was ready to campaign for Nixon after he won the nomination which is now considered certain.

DECIDED YESTERDAY

Aides to the secretary said he decided yesterday to issue the statement but it was not distributed to the press until mid-way today hours after news was out that Rockefeller and Nixon had announced agreement on major issues after a middle-of-the-night meeting in New York.

The secretary said "I have consistently refused to endorse a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination prior to the action of the party's convention. This continues to be my policy."

But sources close to Benson said the statement unmistakably meant that Benson wanted to see Rockefeller head the GOP ticket.

CONVENTION COVERAGE GETS AT GRASS ROOTS

What's behind the scenes at America's national political conventions?

Aside from all the comings and goings of the delegates and potential candidates, and their personal and public problems, there is a vast communications force at work.

Press services and large newspapers and radio and television networks have platoons and companies of news employees working virtually around the clock.

How about the not-so-large paper? The Independent-Journal for instance? The I-J this year has taken a bold and initiative step forward in personal staff coverage of both conventions.

Possible Clash Averted

CHICAGO (AP) — A surprise pact between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on GOP platform policy today averted a possibly furious floor clash between forces of the two leaders on the convention floor next week.

It also led to:

1. Talk that the New York governor might pull out of the presidential picture finally and irrevocably, although "Draft Rockefeller" headquarters announced it would continue to boom him.

SPURNS NO. 2 SPOT

2. Rising hopes among those who want to get Rockefeller to take the vice presidential nomination. Many view it as the strongest combination to do combat with the Kennedy-Johnson Democratic ticket. But Rockefeller was still insisting he would not take the second spot. And Nixon's press aide, Herbert Klein, announced here that Nixon did not "attempt to pressure" Rockefeller to run with him.

3. Mutterings of angry dissent from the Republican conservative wing. Obviously incensed, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona pointed out that the Nixon-Rockefeller platform agreement was reached after a night meeting in New York.

FORM OF PROTEST

He said he thought the platform was supposed to be written here, and he objected to "dictation" from the governor of New York. He hinted he might allow his name to go before the convention as a presidential candidate, as a form of protest.

Dixie members of the platform committee met in rump sessions to see what they could do to head off a strong civil rights plank.

A Rockefeller statement issued after his meeting with Nixon in New York said:

"Assure aggressive action to remove the remaining vestiges of segregation or discrimination in all areas of national life—voting and housing, schools and jobs. It will express support for the objectives of the sit-in demonstrators and will commend the action of those businessmen who have abandoned the practice of refusing to serve food at their lunch counters to their Negro customers and will urge all others to follow their example."

Rockefeller meanwhile was flying here, and his backers prepared what they hoped would be a rousing reception for him.

FOREIGN POLICY

The fields of compromise between Nixon and Rockefeller seemed to be confined largely to national defense, foreign policy, civil rights and a method of financing medical care for the aged.

In an eight-hour New York meeting which he took the initiative in arranging, Nixon and the New York governor agreed on what the latter called "specific and basic positions on foreign policy and national defense."

"These constitute the basic

Congo Faces Food, Medical Shortage

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — United Nations officials said today the 23-day-old republic of Congo has "virtually collapsed" as a modern state and they appealed urgently for medical aid to stave off epidemics in the chaotic land.

As Belgian troops began pulling out of Leopoldville for interior bases, as agreed by the Brussels government, remaining whites in Leopoldville wondered whether enemies of Premier Patrice Lumumba would try to overthrow him during his current trip to New York.

President Joseph Kasa Vubu, leader of the powerful Abako Party which is strong in Leopoldville, is a political enemy of Lumumba whose main strength lies in far-off Stanleyville.

U. N. officials under Dr. Ralph Bunche were working desperately to maintain order, keep the Congolese fed and stave off famine and disease.

Sture Linner of Sweden, the U. N. technical assistance representative here, said the health situation was "extremely grave."

Communications, food supply systems, utilities and above all medical facilities were hamstrung by lack of trained technicians and equipment.

Linner said almost all Belgian physicians had either left the Congo or were planning to leave. Authorities were worried about the breakdown of the water filtration plant for Leopoldville and called in a team of experts from Ghana to repair it.

"We have appealed urgently for doctors and nurses and we are asking for all U. N. member nations to help," Linner said.

The lower Congo River port of Matadi, which supplies food to Leopoldville and which was seized by Congolese Army mutineers two weeks ago, was back in operation under the control of U. N. troops from Morocco, Linner said.

But a train derailment on the line between Matadi and Leopoldville would prevent deliveries of food and supplies to the capital for 48 hours, he said.

Three Held For Break-In At Pharmacy

Three San Francisco men are scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday in connection with a break-in at the West Marin Pharmacy at Point Reyes Station early yesterday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Booked on suspicion of burglary and attempted burglary were Charles F. Tillman, 22; William Wayne Keller, 22, and George M. Cirvello, 29. Tillman and Keller also were being held for San Francisco police for violation of probation. Cirvello, a burglar on parole from Hawaii, was held in $5,550 bail.

The trio was captured yesterday morning in Sebastopol after sheriff's deputies put out a description of the car that sped away from Point Reyes Station.

A burglar alarm apparently frightened the theives away from the pharmacy before they could get any loot. The pharmacy has been broken into twice previously within the last seven months.

Hearst Castle Open; Weather Aids Fighters

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Hearst Castle at San Simeon, closed Wednesday when a giant fire burned to within a half mile of it, today was reopened by the state parks board.

A parks spokesman said regular tours were resumed today at the estate of the late publisher William Randolph Hearst who left the showplace to California for a state park.

The 46,000-acre blaze reached the estate on one side, but damage was slight. The marble and stone castle was not harmed.

OTHER FIRES

In other parts of the state more than 6,000 fire fighters, given a valuable assist by the weather, today began building hasty lines around a rash of Southern California fires that have charred 125,000 acres.

Forest service officials said the outlook at all the major fires was better today than at any time in the past week. They credited dropping temperatures, increasing humidity and dropping winds.

The fires, three of them in the vast Angeles National Forest that separates Los Angeles from the deserts, have burned more than 40 homes and forced thousands to flee.

BOY, 7, LOST

More than 250 persons today pressed the search for a 7-year-old boy missing 12 days in Angeles forest.

A sheriff's sergeant said the searchers refused to give up hope that Bruce Kremen of Granada Hills, might still be found alive. He wandered away from a group of 80 YMCA campers on his first day at camp July 13.

Two new fires — one in Cleveland National Forest near Corona, the other about 17 miles north of Filmore, have charred more than 1,000 acres

Airman Escapes Injury As Car Flips In Blowout

A young Hamilton Field airman escaped without injury early this morning when a blowout sent the vehicle flipping end over end through a guard rail and off Highway 101 to the Lucas Valley underpass 30 feet below.

The car, which landed on its right side, was a total wreck. But A/1C Robert F. Lehigh, 25, of the 1902 Airways and Air Communications Service emerged unscathed, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Moments after the 4:30 a.m. accident, a car driven by A/1c Walter Luchie Jr., 26, of the 78th Food Service Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base, stopped at the scene in the fastest northbound lane, was struck in the rear by a car driven by James R. Stewart, 50, of 1 Shields Lane, Novato, a San Francisco Examiner photographer, the CHP reported.

Stewart suffered a fractured left heel and ankle and a cut nose. His condition at San Rafael General Hospital was described as good.

Two men who had been waving traffic ahead at the accident scene, A/2C Austin W. Jones, 20, of the 4435 Air Transportation Squadron at Hamilton, and Luther Williams of 1133 Bodkin Street, Hamilton, reported to CHP officers that they had told Luchie to move on.

In another mishap, a 24-year-old waitress apparently fell asleep at the wheel at 2:40 a.m. today and her car spun around to hit a Highway 101 embankment south of San Rafael's California Park overpass, the CHP reported.

Edith Lorraine Hilmanofski of 5 Laurel Avenue, Kentfield was thrown from her car but was unhurt, the CHP said.

At 12:55 p.m. yesterday a northbound Volkswagen sedan driven by Arthur Milton, 23, of San Mateo, a trainee counselor at San Quentin Prison, was caught by a gust of wind on the Highway 101 Waldo Grade Milton lost control of the car, it struck a guard rail and overturned, the CHP reported.

Kennedy Gets Briefing On U.S. Problems

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy was briefed for more than two hours by Central Intelligence Chief Allen W. Dulles today on U. S. problems around the world with particular attention to the situation in Africa and Cuba.

The Democratic presidential candidate said after the meeting at Kennedy's summer home here that he would confer with Dulles again in Washington after Congress reconvened Aug. 8.

He said Dulles also had arranged for a defense department representative to visit Kennedy here within the next two weeks to provide further specific details on the nation's military posture.

Grocer Injured— Door Wasn't Open

An employee of a Mill Valley grocery store was treated at Rafael General Hospital last night for a cut forehead he received when he walked through a closed glass door.

George O. Chenault, 34, walked through the door he thought was open in his home at 826 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, shortly before 10 p.m. He is the assistant manager of Mill Valley's Safeway store.

He was released from the hospital after receiving treatment, a hospital spokesman reported.

Abductor Caught

GREAT NECK, N. Y. (AP) — A pretty red haired housewife was kidnaped early today from her $75,000 Nassau County home by two armed Negroes who shot her husband, bound him wit wire and left him to die. One abductor and the woman, apparently unharmed, were captured later in Connecticut.

The boy admitted breaking into the garage to look for something to sell, police said. He pried off the padlock with pliers, he told them.

The girl admitted taking about $90 at various times from Mrs. Lilly May Klein, owner of the property at 914 Mission Avenue, police said. She named two persons allegedly responsible for ransacking Mrs. Klein's home earier this month.

The girl also said she took a purse and sweater from a former tenant at the same house, but later returned them after the tenant accused her.

Ailing Marin Attorney Flown Out From Sierra Pack Trip

A 33-year-old Novato attorney is in Fresno County Hospital today recovering from dehydration and a kidney ailment suffered on a pack trip in the high Sierra, the Associated Press reported.

Edwin Grundstrom Jr., law partner of Novato city attorney Clark M. Palmer Jr., was reported in satisfactory condition. He was flown out of the Courtright Dam area by helicopter yesterday.

Grundstrom's party was met by three physicians, also on a pack trip. Dr. Edwin Kerr of Hanford said Grundstrom should be hospitalized. The forestry service released the helicopter from standby fire duty to take the attorney to Fresno.

Grunstrom's pack trip party included his 16-year-old nephew, Denny Grundstrom of Santa Rosa; Bill D. Miller, a Novato pharmaceutical salesman, and his son, Jim; a man named Guy Eichler and a Los Angeles boy.

Mrs. Grundstrom said her husband left on the pack trip last Saturday and had been expected home tonight. The Grundstroms and their two children live at 96 Orchard Way, Novato.

HE DROPPED IN FOR A BATH

Eugene H. (Butch) Mueller III, 12, of 33 Mohawk Avenue, Corte Madera, holds the red-tailed hawk he found on his back lawn Thursday. The bird was apparently taking a shower in the lawn sprinkler. It gobbled up the horsemeat Butch fed it as if it were very hungry, and it seemed to be tame. After spending the day with the Mueller family the bird is now the temporary guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Layman at 50 Mohawk Avenue.

Reports Vary On Red Moves Near Berlin

COMBINED A.P. and U.P.I.

WASHINGTON—Conflicting reports swept Washington today on whether President Eisenhower had held high-level meetings with his advisers dealing with possible new Russian moves.

The reports were published by the Chicago Sun-Times after authoritative sources said yesterday U. S. officials had received an intelligence report that the Soviet and the East German Reds might trigger a "military move" against free West Berlin within 30 days. This was denied by the White House and State Department.

The summer White House at Newport, R. I., then denied that the National Security Council, as reported by the Sun-Times, flew to a secret meeting with the president Thursday, "amid indications of a new international crisis."

The State Department said a scheduled meeting of the council was held in Washington Thursday and was attended by Secretary Christian A. Herter as usual.

At Philadelphia, Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) says information he has on a buildup of arms and men leads him to believe there is imminent danger of a Communist military move against West Berlin.

Relying on what he said are sources of "great integrity" outside the government, Flood told the Pennsylvania American Legion yesterday that such action by the Soviet Union and its East German satellite might come within 30 days.

His speech came after the White House and State Department had disclaimed knowledge of similar reports.

THEN IKE, MAMIE LEAVE

Ruddy-Faced Man Listens As Park Named For Him

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—They sat there in the park in the lazy July sun—the ruddy-faced man and his wife with the twinkling eyes.

They were two among 1,000 or so, listening to Henry Wilkinson who used to be mayor of this one-time capital of Rhode Island.

In front and a bit to the right of the smiling man and his wife, who was smiling too, was a fife and drum corps of youngsters—all of them smartly uniformed in bright red jackets, white breeches, black leggings and tricornered hats.

Mr. Wilkinson was talking—and the ruddy-faced man and his wife eased to the edge of their chairs, the better to hear.

Wilkinson was noting that the small park in Washington Square—right where all this was going on — was being named for an important man. For many years the park had simply been called The Mall. Now that was being changed. And Wilkinson was telling why.

He was saying that this nation's first president, George Washington, was known as first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

And he was saying, too, that the important man being honored yesterday afternoon—the man after whom the park was being named—also is, in a modern way, "first and foremost" in peace and in the hearts of his countrymen.

Then the important man got up—the man for whom they were naming the park. The crowd applauded. He smiled a big smile. And then he said:

"I am deeply touched by this kind and gracious incident and thought."

He went on to say something about having a "rather long and unusual name," and he wondered whether future generations would wonder why in the world the little park has been named for him.

The wonderful thing about it all, he said, was that in this land of liberty, Newport folks years from now could change the name of the park if they decided they didn't like it—or got just plain tired of it. He seemed to be implying that in some places outside of this country folks don't have that kind of freedom.

A moment later the ruddy-faced man and his wife—Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of the United States, and his wife, Mamie, drove off.

Raphael Village Prowler Scared By Baby's Cries

A prowler tried to break into the bedroom of a Raphael Village home Thursday but was frightened away when the baby cried and the dog growled, sheriff's deputies reported.

Angelic M. Hollander, 23, of 510 Entrada Drive, called the sheriff at 1:14 a.m. She said she heard someone try her bedroom window, but it was locked. She lay still. Then, Mrs. Hollander said, the prowler tried the window of the baby's bedroom. The infant began crying, and the family dog growled.

She called her husband at Hamilton Air Force Base, who told her to notify the sheriff immediately. By the time officers arrived, the prowler was gone.

Scouts Plan Services Under Sky

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The 56,078 boys attending the fifth National Boy Scout Jamboree will break ranks tomorrow for religious services of all faiths.

Jamboree officials believe the observances will constitute the largest assembly of teenage youth for public worship in modern history.

Services will be held under the sky inside the 2,400-acre campsite for Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Buddhists, Moslems and Hindus.

The encampment opened yesterday with a colorful ceremony during which flags of the 20 states and the flag of the United States were raised.

Climaxing the day was a pageant tracing the growth of America from 1942. Scouts enacted it.

In Dental Services

Dr. Robert L. Tuckey of 16 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, a colonel in the Army Reserve Dental Corps, is serving until July 30 as chief of dental services for the 346th General Hospital at Fort Ord. The reserve unit is on its annual two-weeks summer training.

DISARM BID SNAGGED

U.S. Says It Will Expose Russ Lie In Plane Charge

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United States promised to expose as a lie Soviet charges a U.S. reconnaissance plane was on a spy mission when it was shot down by a Soviet fighter July 1.

U.S. chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge served notice last night he would have a "great deal" to say when the United Nations Security Council meets again Monday over the shooting incident which he described as "criminal and piratical."

Lodge blasted Soviet charges as a "sinister fabrication" at yesterday's Council session highlighted by the presence of the wives of the plane's crew.

He spoke after Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told the 11-nation Council the United States had sent the plane into Soviet air space "to detect the system of radar stations and other military objectives" in the Soviet Union.

At the same time the United States ran into opposition today in its bid for a meeting of the U.N. Disarmament Commission "early in August."

Some diplomats said the U.S. wanted a meeting Aug. 5. Lodge said the commission should discuss the breakdown of the 10-nation East-West disarmament talks in Geneva June 27 when the Communist side walked out.

One key delegate said he had talked with 20 colleagues and found that none was in favor of meeting before the end of August.

Rotary Club Seeks Incorporation

San Anselmo's Rotary Club has filed articles in Sacramento to form a non-profit corporation, according to announcement by secretary of state Frank M. Jordan.

Attorney Wallace S. Myers, who prepared the papers, said today this was designed to "give better protection to club members in carrying out the Rotary service program."

Without incorporation, he said, there is a possibility of claims against individual members in connection with club activities. He said incorporation is not usual for service clubs, but is not without precedent.

Apology From Newsmen To Newspaper Readers

We have an apology to make. We are not apologizing for ourselves individually, but for our profession as a whole. We want to apologize to newspaper-readers everywhere for the actions of our fellow journalists.

We doubt there was any intent to defraud in the usual sense. Certainly nothing illegal was done. But a rigged newspaper story is just as despicable as a rigged quiz show.

The wilderness survival debaucle being featured in San Francisco newspapers was a rigged story in the same way some of the TV programs were rigged—that is they attempted to give the readers the impression that a contest was under way, man pitted against nature, and the ending was in doubt.

Actually, man had been pitted against nature, or a reasonable facsimile, but the battle was all over. There was no more struggle. The outcome was as certain as the success of a quiz contestant who had been given the answers. Yet the stories continued as if it were still going on.

Believing The Chronicle to be an honorable paper, we think the final stories would have reported the victory of nature in any event. We don't think they would have faked a happier ending.

But in an industry which is dedicated to truth and attempts to find and present that truth as quickly as possible, it is discouraging when one of our number takes an action which reflects upon all of us.

So as we apologize, we renew our dedication to the presentation of facts and we pledge a soul-searching on our own part to correct any backsliding in which we too may have coasted.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to William L. Hughes, new chairman of the County Grand Jury, and to the 18 other Marinites who will serve with him. Few people know how much work they are undertaking or what power they have. They will find it one of the hardest and most rewarding and interesting jobs they have ever undertaken.

A BRICKBAT to a San Rafael police officer, in a department whose members are usually polite and helpful. He saw a motorist whose car's hood had just blown up and wrapped around the windshield. Instead of helping the car get to a service station, he merely shook his finger and shouted: "Put down that hood."

A BOUQUET to Marin County Savings and Loan Association which celebrated its 74th birthday this week.

A BRICKBAT for each and every one of the il-litterates who scatter our roadsides and countryside with refuse and debris. Especially one particular litterbug who dumped seven or eight large shopping bags of old beer cans and used TV dinners at one of the best vista points along Boyd Park's Dollar Drive in San Rafael.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Here We Go Again; This Time It's Republicans In Chicago

By CHAPIN A. DAY

DAY

CHICAGO—Well, here we go again. Tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. (don't any of these people go to church?), the California delegation to the Republican convention is to hold a caucus in their headquarters, the Drake Hotel on Michigan Boulevard. On Monday the convention opens with a double session, at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

I don't know exactly why Senator Thomas Kuchel, the chairman, has called the caucus. They say to discuss strategy. If the California delegation needs strategy, maybe Nelson Rockefeller is worrying Dick Nixon more than I had imagined.

Rockefeller, by the way, has invited the delegates to a big reception after the Tuesday night convention session. It is coincidental that the nominations for President will be made on Wednesday.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, however, it has not been the backers of Rockefeller who have kicked up the most fuss thus far. Both Marin County representatives, Senator John F. McCarthy, a delegate, and Elmer Worlund, an alternate, report that they have been swamped with letters and post cards urging presidential nomination of Senator Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona.

McCarthy called his mail "an avalanche." He said he had received several hundred letters and six or seven hundred post cards for Goldwater, mostly from Southern California. "Nearly as many as on capital punishment."

Worlund said that while he had received only half a dozen communications about Rockefeller, he had "a tremendous flood" of cards and letters about the Arizona conservative. Many came from Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Oxnard and Long Beach, he said, but there were a goodly number from Arizona and some from as far away as South Carolina.

Haven't been here long enough to bet the lowdown, but at present it looks as though both Rockefeller and Goldwater might be nominated.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS are planning a big parade and other events here tomorrow and subsequently. More than 80 of them are from California, including at least two from Marin.

The two Marinites I've heard about so far are Miss Jeanne Dausse of San Anselmo and Joe Barish of Corte Madera.

In the parade tomorrow is going to be a special Californit float honoring Vice President Nixon.

MUST USE THE TALE end of this column to wind up the Democratic convention in Los Angeles.

If you'll recall, a couple of weeks ago I reported on my first Democratic convention—in 1924. It was through the letters written by a Mrs. Stephen D. Stephens, chairman of the Women's Democratic Club of New York, that my grandmother and I were admitted.

In Los Angeles I decided to talk to the head of the New York Democratic women's group.

She turned out to be Mrs Mae Gurevich, a striking middle-aged blonde who was vice chairman of the New York Democratic State Committee.

She was fascinated with the letter Mrs. Stephens had given me to admit us to Madison Square Gardens. "Can you imagine what would have happened if I had written a note to an acquaintance asking the doorman here to let two people into the Sports Arena?" she asked. "Some doorman would have gotten a good laugh."

She pointed out that the Women's Democratic Club was a brand new organization in 1924. Women had only been allowed to vote for five years.

"Vaguely I recall such an organization existed," Mrs. Gurevich said. "It was the beginning of the women's division which became part and parcel of the state committee. I think Mrs. Stephens was its first chairman."

Maybe my letter should be in the New York archives.

I-J Unexpected Bonus In Marin

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

One of the unexpected bonuses of moving to Marin has been the I-J. I am sometimes annoyed with your Republican bias, which could only be altered by a resulting Democratic leaning; my own alternative toward a Labor Party isn't even practical until some of the present "necks haired over" of John L. are replaced.

Some of your editorials such as the scream of agony over advertising influence on newspapers as a public school doctrine amused me considering the work of Seldes, Steffens et al in this field.

However I am happy to erect a balance when you support the Civic Center and Frank Lloyd Wright. Having lived on the edge of San Francisco and seen the few trees toppled; this summer driving across the Gate, thru the City, and down the Peninsula I can say from personal experience that a few degrees shift in temperature is not the criterion. Sweating hot heat in Marin may have produced some physical discomfort: across the Bay it had a mental and spiritual impact.

I am reminded of some experience with various representatives of San Mateo County at Sacramento, in the years when they were quite anti-labor and not yet industry minded; and their change with the composition of the county. I suspect in its own way Marin may have some such shift of orientation. And certainly the lately released income figures don't indicate a financial drought here. (damned if I know how to get into the upper brackets though.) So I can only suggest that the opposition to the center take a long ride on a stifling day down Bayshore and El Camino, then come back along Skyline and decide if a green Marin isn't to be desired and preserved. This of course could apply equally well to those opposing the Point Reyes et al parkway.

If I may extract from some of the philosophy of Mr. Wright and suggest that here is as well the spirit of Marin:

"Architecture is that great living creative spirit which from generation to generation, from age to age, proceeds, persists, creates according to the nature of man.

"In all buildings that man has built out of earth and upon the earth, his spirit, the pattern of him, rose great or small.

". . . in architecture . . . God meets with nature in the sphere of the relative.

"Man takes a positive hand in creating whenever he puts a building upon the earth beneath the sun. If he has a birthright at all, it must consist in this: that he, too, is no less a feature of the landscape than the rocks, trees, bears or bees of that nature to which he owes his being.

"I am here to assure you that the circumference of architecture is changing with astounding rapidity but that its center remains unchanged, the human heart."

We of Marin will I think be happy with having retained for our children some portion of nature as well as having provided the final monument to Wright. Keep the ramparts manned.

Finally, thank you for assuming that there is enough intellectual capacity in your broad reading public to justify Frank Interlandi. The Chronicle, spokesman for the City, was unable to manage as much. Keep up the good work.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

A missionary, writes J. Arthur Spring, came home from the fields for a vacation and was invited to dinner by the congregation's richest widow. Later he told his wife, "The other ladies present really amazed me. Some to my certain knowledge wore a church, 40 portable organs and 20 libraries."

In his longing to provide the gospel for his aboriginal flock, the earnest missionary could not refrain from estimating the silks, jewelry and furs of the guests at the dinner in terms of his people's needs.

One day in the 1670's, the then Earl of Dorset happened to pick up a copy of a recently published book at his favorite bookseller. "I was surprised," he noted in his diary, "with some passages I struck upon dipping here and there, and bought it. My bookseller begged me to speak in its favor if I liked it, for copies lay on his hands as waste paper."

The book was Milton's PARADISE LOST.

Demonstrators Mis-Used Bible

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

The attempt at coercion of the judiciary by Bible-carrying demonstrators both in and out of the courtroom in Miami, Fla., is an affrontery to the American judicial system and its heritage of fairness to both parties. They obviously feel they can influence a legal decision by this maneuver, and it will be a sad day for our democracy if they succeed.

Regardless of one's intellectual and emotional feelings on this vital issue of separation of church and state, there is no place for so blatant an attempt at emotional persuasion as these well meaning, but ill-advised, demonstrators are presently undertaking.

YOUNG VOTERS AMONG THE MISSING

Americans between the ages of 21 and 29 have the poorest voting record. That startling fact appeared in a survey by the American Heritage Foundation.

Such a high percentage of neglect is especially dangerous among a group who, above most others, should use the ballot to shape trends toward peace based on justice. Young men in particular pay a high price when a country is allowed to become weak.

Get at the roots of this apathy in a constructive way. Show teenagers, for instance, how they can prepare to shoulder their share of civic responsibilities in the years ahead.

One effective way to point out the importance of their individual votes would be to bring them to the polls on election day and show them the voting process in operation.

God gives us the blessing of liberty. But he does not force it upon us. Show your appreciation for this precious gift by voting intelligently in every election.

"Be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves."

Inspire young people, O Father of all, to protect the future by fulfilling today's responsibilities.

A Boyd On Hand Is Worth Two Out There In The Bushes

Can't blame any family for getting out of the wilderness and scampering back to civilization the first chance it gets.

After all, you figure a Boyd on hand is worth two wandering out there in the bushes.

If you followed the daily accounts, you probably knew they weren't exactly on the brink of starvation. A man gasping his last isn't going to waste any daylight hour pounding out stories and posing the rest of his dying crew for daily snapshots.

AUDIENCE PARTICIPATION will be at its best when Terra Linda Little Theater puts on its new Who-Done-It in October. They're gonna pick a jury from the audience each night to find whether the hero is guilty or not guilty.

They'll have two endings ready, no matter which way the jury decides. But won't Director Dick Shirley tear what's left of his hair if they come back with a hung jury!

JACKHAMMERS kept interrupting the courtroom above the county jail. Court officials went scurrying to see what the commotion was about.

"They're digging a hole in the county jail, your honor," one of the attaches reported.

"From the inside or the outside?" Judge Leonard Thomas wanted to know.

He was assured they were merely trying to repair a clogged sewer main.

THEY'VE REPAIRED nearly 10,000 watches in about eight years, says jeweler Jim Callan.

The 10,000th one to bring his ticker in for a repair job will get a prize.

DIST. ATTY. Bill Weissich will have to part with some of his prized possessions when he quits Aug. 1. Among them is a beautifully mounted marijuana plant, and gadgets used by smokers.

The moment he becomes a private citizen, such exhibits in his possession become taboo—illegal,too.

JIM FRENCH has kept his promise to stay out of the courts during the past few years. But he's only human. Just the other day, he appeared in court behind a full growth of beard and admitted he got more than his share of striped bass.

He went out on a pal's boat and between them hooked 15 stripers, nine over limit.

SUPER SALESMAN. Receptionist Stephanie von Buchau of KTIM took this ad on the Swap Shop program:

"For sale. Outboard gas tank—good condition."

Next day, the same man wanted it change to "fine condition." The third day the gas tank was in "excellent condition." If somebody doesn't buy it pretty soon, it's gonna be "out of this world."

It's probably no coincidence that a nearby radio station, specializing in jazz, is called Station KHIP.

Immediate Cuban Policy Needs Kennedy, Other Nations Support

WASHINGTON — Cuba is an immediate case where the national interest requires a basic understanding between the administration and Sen. John Kenendy.

Our greatest immediate danger is that we may allow ourselves to be provoked by the tirades and the intrigues and the confiscations of Castro and by the propaganda of the Soviet Union, provoked into acts of reprisal and intervention.

My own view is that Mr. K. is hoping to provoke us to intervene, believing with good reason that this, like the British-French intervention against Nasser at Suez, would arouse Latin and world opinion against us.

REFUSING TO BE provoked is, of course, not in itself a policy. But it is the essential preliminary to a policy. It will be easier to refuse to be provoked if the Democratic candidates support the refusal.

To work out a positive polisy is not easy. In forming a policy we shall have to face hard and disagreeable facts. The first is that we no longer have, as we had earlier in this century, the power to intervene whenever and wherever our interests were affected. Since the second World War ended, we have surrendered this unilateral power to the collective power of the other American states.

THE SECOND FACT is that while the American states agreed at Caracas in 1954 to oppose "the domination or control of the political institutions of any American state by the international Communist movement," all that these governments are pledged to do is to "call a consultative meeting to consider the adoption of measures."

The fact is that the prospects are poor of our being able to rally the American states for action against Castro. These states fear our intervention, which has happened so many times, more than they fear Russia's intervention, which as yet is only talk.

It follows that we shall have to live with the Cuban revolution, just as Britain has had to live with the revolutions in Egypt and Iraq. The more we allow ourselves to be jockeyed into the position of being a great counter-revolutionary power, the more will sympathy with Castro grow in this hemisphere.

IF THESE ARE the things we cannot do, what, if anything, is there that we can do? At bottom everything depends on whether we can make friends wtih the intellectual leaders of the American states, and through them with the masses who follow them. That friendship cannot, we may be sure, be bought.

The friendship of our neighbors can be had when they feel that there is equality between them and us. The sense of equality which can breed friendship will come when we dispel the notion that our neighbors are underdeveloped and struggling while we are developed and are a virtually perfected model of a free society.

If this country becomes again the scene of a movement to improve and reform and develop itself, we shall again win friends abroad and influence them.

20 YEARS AGO

The wife of a San Rafael private detective charged that her husband spent so much time at target practice that she was entitled to a divorce.

Marin County property owners put up some terrific battles against appraisals by Assessor George W. Hall, but mostly the Board of Equalization displayed a stony heart and upheld Hall's view that Marin land grows steadily more valuable.

MARIN'S NEW CIVIC CENTER TAKES FORM

Site excavation work at the new Civic Center in Santa Venetia is now well advanced and foundations of the Administration Building are being poured, as is visible in this aerial view looking south. Hiway 101 angles up from lower right corner and new northbound off-and-on ramps may be seen to the right of the Civic Center area. The circle to the right of the main site clearance will ultimately be the auditorium but plans don't call for completion of it in the first phase; it is scheduled for the summer of 1966 and meanwhile it will be a dirt bowl used for parking, like the earth shelves visible to its upper left. The broad space immediately under the excavated part will be a big lagoon. (Aero Portraits photo)

Police Deny Knowledge Of Boyd Effigy

Mill Valley police today said they had no knowledge of the reported hanging in effigy of Harvey "Bud" Boyd of 32 Magee Avenue yesterday.

The San Francisco Examiner reported today that the effigy was found yesterday morning propped up against the framework supporting the mailbox in front of the Boyd home. Boyd figures in the San Francisco Chronicle's "Last Man on Earth" series.

The figure was dressed in tan pants, a blue plaid sport shirt and a cloth-covered tin can for a head, the article stated. Near the figure was found a roll of toilet tissue and a sign reading, "Bud Boyd, Maybe you can use it This Way To Keep Warm."

Mill Valley Police Chief James McGowan said today, "We didn't hear anything about it . . . nobody reported it."

The Examiner concluded its article by quoting a Mill Valley policeman attributing the effigy to a prank played by high school or college students. (See story on page 8.)

CONCLAVE

Long a veteran observer of the political scene, Chapin A. Day, the I-J's political editor, already has covered the highlights of the Democratic National Convention at Los Angeles.

Today, he is in Chicago sniffing out the news that will come from the Republican National Convention which commences Monday.

It is a tough and wearying job for mass news media to cover all the intricate workings of such a large political gathering. What Day is doing for the I-J is mirroring convention activities as they occur in the state delegation and the actions of the delegates from Marin.

It is from these small groups that the feeling of the people are expressed. From these small state groups come votes that determine who shall be placed in nomination.

There were 1,000 more newsmen at the Los Angeles delegation than there were delegates.

There probably will be even more in Chicago. What's it like, to cover such an event?

Here are some notes left over from Day's Los Angeles notebook, and they probably indicate what it will be like in Chicago.

The press room was the rubdown room of a hotel. Typewriters were stacked next to vibrating machines and barbells.

Celebrities are a dime a dozen. Edward G. Robinson strode around with a cigar in his mouth and Walter Winchell wore his hat, almost unnoticed by the crowds.

There were only about 25 passes for 500 newsmen for entrance to the convention floor. Newsmen had to line and take their turns.

But they got their stories in, every one of them.

Kentfield Man Freed Of Dope Case Charges

A 28-year-old hydraulic technician from Kentfield, who admitted having marijuana at his home and led officers to his "cache" last May, was freed of all charges in Marin Superior Court yesterday because of a legal technicality.

Judge Ralph McGee, visiting judge from Amador County, dismissed charges of narcotics possession against Charles William Harner, 28, of 1008 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Sheriff's deputies said he led them to a chicken coop to the rear of his home where officers found marijauna and peyote on May 18.

Assist Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety, prosecutor, said the prosecution was frustrated by the famous Cahan decision of five years ago.

At the time of Harner's arrest, officers told him both he and his girl friend would be held if he did not lead them to the cache. Whereupon, Harner led them to the chicken coop and told them how he had bought the marijuana in San Francisco for his own use.

Admissions to be used in court must be voluntary under the law. In this case, the judge ruled that Harner's admission was involuntary, because he was acting under the fear that his girl friend would be held.

Garety said the only other way to prosecute was to use evidence turned in by informants. However, under the Cahan decision, the names of the informants would have to be revealed. But in this case as in many cases, revelation of the informants' names could mean injury or death to the informants and would tend to discourage future tips, Garety explained. Therefore he decided not to identify the informants.

positions for which I have been fighting," Rockefeller said in a statement. "If they are embodied in the Republican platform as adopted by the convention they will constitute a platform that I can support with pride and vigor."

Rockefeller's statement was hailed as cheering news in the Nixon camp. It went a long way toward assuring Nixon's associates they will have the enthusiastic support of Rockefeller in the crucial efforts to carry New York State in November.

Rockefeller has said previously he is available for a draft that he doesn't expect to materialize. He based the possibility that his name might go before the convention largely on the grounds that he wanted to influence the platform declarations.

This object having been accomplished, some Republicans felt Rockefeller, who returns here today, might now give Nixon a clear field for the top nomination.

Man Found Dead Identified: Rites Slated Tuesday

A Madera man found dead yesterday in Tomales, apparently from a gunshot wound, was identified today as Charles Leslie Prindle, 61, the Marin County sheriff's office reported.

Prindle's body was found in a half kneeling position beside a pickup truck near Ben Albini's rock quarry off Highway 1. A bullet had entered his mouth and went out at the forehead. He may have been dead at least 24 hours, according to Inspector Carl Sears.

A .22 caliber rifle with one empty cartridge was found alongside the body and a box of ammunition in the truck.

Prindle is survived by two brothers, Harvey of Upper Lake, and Charles of Napa, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Stefani of Willets. He was a World War II veteran.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the Parent Funeral Home in Petaluma.

Boy's Leg Broken As Girl's Bicycle Runs Over Him

A 6-year old Corte Madera boy is nursing a fractured leg he suffered last night when he was run over by a bicycle ridden by the girl next door.

The children were playing together across the street from their homes when the accident occurred at 8:30 p.m. the boy's mother said today.

Wayne E. Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Enos Foster of 400 Oakdale Avenue, was walking when he was struck by the bicycle, Mrs. Foster said. The little girl did not see her playmate.

Wayne's left leg was fractured. His mother said he will probably be wearing a cast for five or six weeks.

Mrs. Greene's husband owns the Howard C. Greene Co., an automotive parts firm in San Francisco.

The city of Mill Valley will celebrate its diamond jubilee in September, and city officials and chamber of commerce leaders hope to have it all spruced up for the occasion.

The city was incorporated Sept. 1, 1900.

VIDEO SHOP TUNED IN ON WRONG LINE

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP)—A local television shop has a red face and Jewel Thorpe has a new antenna.

Thorpe reported last week someone removed his rooftop antenna while he was out.

Now the TV shop says it solved the case. It sent its men on an order to move an antenna. They got the right house number—on the wrong street.

Door Locked, But Marinwood Board Holds Discussion

An informal meeting developed Thursday night when a quorum of the Marinwood Community Services District board failed to show and the door to Silviera School was found locked, reported Chairman Charles M. Johnson.

He and board member Howard H. Council held informal discussion with two firemen and two park and recreation commissioners.

Johnson said he would probably call a special meeting within the next two weeks to ratify a joint powers agreement, scheduled to come before the county board of supervisors on Tuesday.

The Marinwood Community Services District, formed by a February election, did not come into existence soon enough to allow it to levy taxes this fiscal year. The agreement with the county would allow the county to collect taxes for 1960-61 and transfer the money to the district's account to finance its $40,500 budget.

Two Drivers Get Probation, Fines

Two men drew fines and probation yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for driving while intoxicated.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas sentenced Donald Thomas Evans, 38, of 78th Supply Squadron, Hamilton Air Force Base, and John Robert Cox, 23, a visitor at 599-B Crescent Drive, San Rafael. Each must pay $158 fine, and not drive for six months except for essential duties on their jobs.

Evans was caught on Highway 101 on June 30, and Cox on Tamalpais Avenue in Corte Madera last Thursday.

Greenbrae Model Home Opens Today

An all-on-one-level house on a Greenbrae hillside was to be opened for public inspection at 9 a.m. today. It will remain open daily from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The three-bedroom display home, built by the Greenbrae Co. and decorated by Casa Marin of San Rafael, is at 349 Via La Paz.

An entrance garden leads to a pastel door beside a panel of massive Sierra stone. Inside, the same stone has been used in a floor-to-ceiling fireplace and raised hearth. The house's living-dining area and 572-square-foot sun deck give an outlook toward Mount Tamalpais.

The foyer, with walk-in guest closet, leads left into a kitchen equipped with electrical appliances. The wall covering is in a print of white and yellow with cabinets of natural birch. The kitchen also has a service entrance.

Each of the three bedrooms is distinctive: the first, with a silken wall covering, could be converted into a study; the second has a room-width walk-in closet; the third, a master bedroom, has sliding doors which open out to the sundeck.

I-J Stereotyper, Wife Have Son

A potential stereotype operator was born in Marin General Hospital at 6:15 a.m. yesterday.

Andrew L. Hutchins, seven pounds, five ounces, was born to Mrs. Kathleen Hutchins, wife of Ashton L. Hutchins Jr. apprentice stereotype operator for the Independent-Journal.

Andrew's grandfather, Ashton L. Hutchins, is also a stereotype operator for the I-J.

Andrew will go home in several days to 145 Jewell Avenue, San Rafael.

Friends Of Chesnut To Meet In Memory

Friends of James H. Chesnut, 80, Mill Valley builder, will gather in his memory at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

He died yesterday after a short illness at his home at 129 Eldridge Avenue. Family funeral services have been held.

His family has suggested that memorial donations be made to the American Friends Legislative Committee.

Giants Can't Seem To Find Home Plate

Anybody got a spare run he doesn't need?

If so, please rush by special delivery to the San Francisco Giants, who only have scored once in the last 24 innings and look like a solid bet to nail down fifth place this year in the National League unless they take over sixth.

Juan Marichal, rookie fastballer from Central America who lifted their spirits with a one-hitter in his debut last Tuesday, had the job of reviving them again today when he faces the front-running Pittsburgh Pirates.

He will be faced by Harvey (The Kitten) Haddix, who has a 6-5 record this year and has mastered the Giants once this season in his lone decision with them.

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell hurled the Bucs to a 4-1 triumph over the Giants last night and went the distance, although clubbed for nine hits. One was a home run by Willie Mays, his 19th, in the first inning. After that, some stout pitching by the big lefty plus three double plays kept the door shut.

"We've gotta get a single with the bases filled once in a while to go with home runs," Manager Tom Sheehan rumbled afterward. "The Pirates took advantage of their scoring chances and we didn't."

Mizell didn't seem destined to stick around very long after Mays teed off in the opening frame. But he was still there when the crowd of 31,878 shuffled toward the exits. During his tenure, he fanned Willie Kirkland with the bases full and two out in the third, and also whipped a called third strike by Mike McCormick with two aboard in the fourth to end another uprising.

McCormick failed for the tenth straight time to go the route and was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh after being stuck for all four runs, three of which were earned.

The Pirates went ahead to stay in the fifth with an outburst of four singles mixed in with a sacrifice by Mizell. Bill Mazeroski's safety tied the game and two more tallies came in on a line hit to left by lanky Bob Skinner.

The fourth Pittsburgh tally was an unearned affair in the sixth made possible by Orlando Cepeda's error. With three aboard and one out, catcher Hal Smith went out on a short fly to Kirkland in right. Willie shot a hard throw home to keep Dick Groat from coming in and Cepeda, playing the cut-off position, let the ball shoot through him. The spere also went through catcher Bob Schmidt and Groat jogged in.

The Pirates are leading the league by 2½ games. The Giants are 8½ out.

BIG LEAGUE ROUNDUP

White Sox Boast: 'We Told You So'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

If anyone has the perfect right to say I-told-you-so, it's amiable Al Lopez of the surging White Sox.

Only a month ago everyone was counting his White Sox out because they were wallowing along in fifth place, 5½ games behind the front-running Yankees.

Lopez insisted then the White Sox would still come on to win. Few bothered to listen. It's a lot different today, however, now that Chicago has won six in a row and is only three percentage points removed from first place.

"We're really rolling now," Lopez said after last night's 11-5 victory over the Yankees, who have lost 11 of their last 14.

"Our hitting is good, our pitching is good and we've made over 100 double plays already," Lopez added.

The White Sox, who have collected a total of 68 hits in their last five games, raked loser Bob Turley and three Yankee relievers for 18 hits last night. Nellie Fox and Sherm Lollar had three hits apiece and Minnie Minoso drove in three runs as the White Sox snapped a string of seven straight games they had lost to the Yankees. Frank Baumann took over Chicago's pitching when the Yanks threatened in the fifth inning and yielded only three hits over the last 4⅔ innings for his seventh victory.

The Red Sox beat the Indians, 6-4, the Orioles topped the Tigers, 2-1, and the Athletics defeated the Senators, 9-4, in other American League games.

CUBS NIP BRAVES

In the Natinoal League, the Pirates stretched their lead to 2½ games with a 4-1 decision over the Giants, the Cubs outlasted the Braves, 8-7, the Dodgers blanked the Phillies, 2-0, and the Cardinals scored an 8-3 win over the Reds.

Jim Piersall drove in three runs for Cleveland against Boston with his 12th and 13th homers, but it wasn't enough to offset the slugging of Ted Williams and Vic Wertz.

Williams hit his 15th homer and Wertz drove in four runs with three hits, including his 11th homer with two on. Ike Delock was the winner and Jim (Mudcat) Grant the loser.

The Orioles won their game from the Tigers on two unearned runs and a nifty piece of relief pitching by fastballer Jack Fisher. Errors by Frank Bolling and Chico Fernandez helped the Orioles to two runs in the fourth and paved the way for Pete Burnside's fifth defeat. Fisher relieved Steve Barber in the third when Barber's arm tightened and pitched scoreless six-hit ball the rest of the way to earn his sixth triumph.

BIG ERROR

Jim Lemon hit his 24th homer and drove in three runs for Washington, but his sixth inning error helped the A's score four unearned runs and win the ball game. The A's scored six unearned runs in all as Dick Hall won his first game since May 31, although needing help from Ken Johnson. Hal Woodeshick was the loser.

The Cubs built an 8-3 lead against the Braves and then almost squandered it before Jim Schaffernoth came in to relieve winner Don Elston in the ninth and retire Hank Aaron for the final out. Pinch-hitter Eddie Haas and Eddie Matthews homered off Elston in the last two innings and Joe Adcock also homered in the second. Ernie Banks hit his 27th homer with one on off loser Lew Burdette and rookie Ron Santo also connected for the Cubs.

DRYSDALE SPARKLES

Don Drysdale struck out 14 batters in the Dodgers' victory over the Phillies. Drysdale, who gained his eighth victory, yielded only four hits and scored the Dodgers' second run after doubling in the eighth. Frank Howard's 15th homer off loser Gene Conley was all the margin Drysdale really needed, however.

The Cards remained in a virtual tie for third place with the Dodgers on Curt Simmons' six-hit victory over the Reds. St. Louis jumped on loser Joe Nuxhall for three runs in the first inning with the help of a triple by Julio Javier and Daryl Spencer's homer, then added two more runs in the third on doubles by Alex Grammas and Bob Nieman and a single by Stan (The Man) Musial.

Marin Grid Stars To Join Shrine Squad Next Week

Kent Francisco, rugged 225-pound tackle from San Rafael, and Bobby Hector, guard from Tamalpais, will report with 48 other outstanding prep gridders of last season on Monday morning at the Biltmore Hotel in downtown Los Angeles when North and South squads assemble prior to opening practice for the Ninth Annual Shrine Football Classic Friday night, Aug. 5, at the Coliseum.

After staying overnight at the Biltmore, the teams will split up Tuesday morning with North coaches Charles Moore of Kingsburg and John "Biff" Crawley of San Leandro accompanying their charges to Pepperdine College, site of their practice drills.

The South, under coaches Ray Vernoy of Huntington Park and Ray Solari of South Pasadena, will conduct its practice sessions at Whittier College.

Navy Man Leads In Pentathlon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex, (AP) — Navy Lt. Robert L. Beck held a 38-point lead today as the Modern Pentathlon trials for the Olympic Games moved into their last two events.

Beck, of Philadelphia, finished seventh in swimming yesterday, but clung to his lead with 21,940 points. In second place was Army Lt. Alan Jackson of Rolling Hills, Calif., who won the pistol shooting event to bring his total to 2,902.

Jim Lewis of Santa Monica, Calif., won the swimming event by making the 330-meter freestyle course in 3:48.6. It brought his total to 1,930 points.

Cross-country running and horseback riding remain to be contested.

Durocher Hired By Corporation

BEVERLY HILLS (AP)—Lippy Leo Durocher today is no longer among the ranks of unemployed.

The former major league player and manager yesterday was named director of West Coast operations of Son-Mark Industries, a Philadelphia-based firm that operates a dozen major stores and industries across the nation.

A spokesman said Durocher, 54, will have several duties with the nine-million-dollar corporation, including negotiating for new acquisitions and possible purchase of radio stations.

Durocher, ex-husband of actress Laraine Day and former NBC executive, managed the Dodgers and Giants in the National League.

Durocher's salary was not disclosed.

Palmer Loses Lead; Hebert Sets Pace In PGA Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer is going to have to come from behind—as he did in the Masters and National Open, and didn't in the British Open—if he's going to win the 42nd PGA championship.

Proving that even the best can get the worst of it at times, the year's leading money winner ($66,000) from Ligonier, Pa., carved out a startling 74 in yesterday's second round to surrender the lead his opening 67 had given him.

Out front as 95 survivors of the cutoff at scores of 151 went into today's third round was Jay Hebert (he pronounces it ay-bear), from the bayous of Lafayette, La.

Jay, 37, whose younger brother Lionel won this fixture in 1957 when it was at man-to-man combat instead of medal play, had five birdies and two bogeys for the day's best round of 67 and a two-day total of 139, one under par.

Palmer's unexpected collapse on the front nine left him in a three-way tie at 141 with three-time champion Sam Snead, who had a second round 73, and Doug Sanders, Miami Beach, Fla., who had 70-71. Between them and the leader was Don January, the Dallas hotshot, who put together a pair of 70s.

Hebert fired his round early and let the others worry in the 90-degree temperature the rest of the day. Only Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., was able to shoot par in the late going, over the windy dried-out 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course, and his 69 put him at a three-way deadlock at 142 with Ken Venturi, Palo Alto Calif., and John O'Donnell, Baltimore.

Although only six sub-par scores have been fired in two round's by 185 of the country's finest, the first two days were a picnic for the pros. With the field cut to the low 90 ties, the PGA committee hauled out the pipe wrenches today and tightened up the long layout for the stretch drive.

Markers are on the back of all tees, adding as much as 30 yards in some cases, and players have to peek at the flag across the corner of a trap, or seek it in some far corner.

The awesome challenge of this mighty remade course is no myth. Ben Hogan, who just seven years ago won the U. S. and British opens and the Masters in a single year, hasn't scored a birdie in 36 holes of trying here.

Of the leading 42 at the end of two rounds, only seven are club professionals. The other threatening teachers are Fred Wampler, St. Louis and Ed Griffiths, Youngstown, Ohio, at 145, and Brien Charter, Greenville, S. C., Mike Krak, Morgantown, W. Va., Bill Bisdorf, Denver and Shelley Mayfield, Jerico, N. Y., at 146.

Record Game At Greenbrae

Dick Miller, a 169 average bowler in the Greenbrae Lanes' Commercial League, established a house record this week when he bowled a 286 game in league play.

"That's a record for Greenbrae in league play," said Manager Tom Coates as he told of Miller's great performance. Miller fired 10 consecutive strikes during his big game, split on the 11th frame and then picked up nine pins. He finished his first game with a "turkey" and then went on his 10-strike second game performance for a string of 13 consecutive strikes.

Miller's games were 202, 286 and 154 for a 642 total.

KEN CARLTON hit a 601 series, including a 254 solo, in Tuesday night's Goof Balls League at Greenbrae. . . . Bill Dawson had a 554 to lead the men and Sylvia DeVere a 487 to top the women in the Mixed Mates League. . . . Jim Dehl came in with 561 and Evelyn Gusimano a 440 in the Guys and Dolls League at Greenbrae.

Spokane Increases Coast League Lead

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pacific Coast League-leading Spokane Indians got back on the track last night with a 12-hit barrage and a 10-5 victory over the visiting Vancouver Mounties.

The win gave Spokane a 5½ game lead over the Sacramento Solons, who dropped a 9-2 decision to the Giants of Tacoma. The Giants, who moved into third place only Thursday, pulled to within half a game of Sacramento.

In other action, Salt Lake City romped over San Diego 9-1 for the Bees' 10th win in 11 encounters with the Padres. Mike Baxes' solo homer in the fifth was the only tally as the Portland Beavers shut out Seattle 1-0.

S.A. Hurlers Star In Semi-Pro Tilt; Mill Valley Loses

San Anselmo's Ongaro Plumbers showed off some sensational pitching to whitewash the Marin Buffalows, 8-0, and the Franciscans of San Francisco downed the Mill Valley Merchants, 5-2, last night in a semi-professional double-header at Albert Field in San Rafael.

A crowd estimated at 500 fans sat in on the six-hour and 45-minute feature that was presented as a preview of the California State Semi-Pro Championships that will start next Friday night at Albert Field. Twenty-four of the state's leading non-pro teams will be competing in the state tourney for the chance to represent California in the National Championships in Wichita, Kansas in August.

Manager Dom Boccabella of San Anselmo tested three pitchers against the Buffalow team and each showed the pilot some fancy flipping. Starter Willie Franco struck out four in three innings, Don Nance did exactly the same and Bobby DeRosa, ace of the Hub City staff, hurled the final three innings, striking out seven. That brought the strikeout total to 15!

The Buffalow team was held to three hits.

Highlight of San Anselmo's offense was a tremendous, 370-foot bases-loaded triple to right center field by John Boccabella in the sixth inning. The Plumbers collected three walks and a pinch single by DeRosa before Boccabella's triple in that big four-run inning.

M.V. LOSES

That game didn't end until 12:45 a.m. In the first game, which started at 6 p.m., the Mill Valley Merchants held a 2-1 edge going into the sixth but the Franciscans exploded for four runs on a walk, two singles, a double and an error.

It was a tough loss for Mill Valley's strike-out artist Bruce Anderson who whiffed 11. However, his control betrayed him as he walked six. Don Palaia led Mill Valley hitters with two safeties.

Semi-pro action continues tomorrow with three games on tap in Marin County. The games and starting times will be at Tiburon's Judge Field at 2:30 p.m., and at San Anselmo's Memorial Park and Mill Valley's Project 17 fields, both at 2 p.m.

FOR THE BOIDS — Equipped with nothing more than a salt grinder, a child's bow and arrow (?) and a pair of barbecue forceps, Independent-Journal sports editor Jim Gilmartin made his own foray into the wilderness yesterday — determined not to be outdone by his onetime columnist, Harvey (Bud) Boyd of Mill Valley, whose "last man" series in the San Francisco Chronicle has resulted in that paper suing the rival Examiner for $1,500,000 libel. For his wilderness adventure, Gilmartin chose—appropriately enough — Boyd Memorial Park. (Is that a rifle on his shoulder? Tsk! Tsk!) (Independent-Journal photo by Dick 'Big Hunter' Steinheimer).

HAFB Units Reshaped For Efficiency

Ground force backup units to Hamilton Air Force Base jets are being reorganized for greater efficiency, after this week's announced command changes at the base.

The 78th Maintenance and Supply Group has relieved the 78th Fighter Group of aircraft maintenance responsibilities by taking over the 78th Armament and Electronics Squadron and the 78th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

Also joining the maintenance and supply group are the former Western Air Defense Force flight section and personnel of the recently deactivated 678th field maintenance squadron of the Tactical Air Command.

The maintenance and supply group has made space for its newly acquired duties by turning over control of base housekeeping units such as the 78th transportation squadron, base clothing store, commissary and base laundry to the 78th Air Base Group.

Boys Tip Boat Swim Into Arms Of Law

Two 15-year-old boys from Novato took a North Marin Water District boat for a spin at Stafford Reservoir tipped it over the middle of the lake, then swam to shore into the waiting arms of the law Thursday afternoon.

Shortly before 2 p.m., Sheriff's Sgt. Edward Levine got a call that boys were in trouble on the lake. Employees of the Water District jumped into another boat and went after the boys.

According to Sergeant Levine, the boys spotted the other boat approaching and apparently decided to swim to the opposite shore. As they scrambled up the shore, Levine was waiting for them. He gave them a stern reprimand and released them.

Toy Train Collectors Are On The Track With Conclave In Marin This Weekend

They Don't Want Visitors – Just Peace And Quiet

Toy trains—those fascinating gadgets sometimes bought for the kiddies but mostly run by Dad—are the center of an unusual San Rafael convention this weekend.

Western states members of the National Toy Train Collectors Assn. are swapping and talking, buying and selling, the miniature engines and rolling stock.

Be warned before you dash off on a visit: They don't want visitors. What they want is just peace and quiet to show off and run their trains. People who don't know about toy trains would tromp all over everything.

About 75 delegates opened the convention last night at Carpenters Hall with the "big business" of the meeting — trading, buying, selling.

There was more of the same at the hall from 9 o'clock this morning.

First formal trading started at 1 p.m. with an auction of equipment, followed by a brief business session.

The delegates will return at 7 p.m. for a second auction of collector's items, and at 8:30 p.m. they will view motion pictures of model trains.

Informal visits to toy train layouts at the homes of members throughout the Bay area will wind up the convention tomorrow.

Ted A. Murray of 26 Mission Street, San Rafael, president of the sponsoring Northern California division of the association, said that in keeping with the general precision of the hobby there will be an issue of road maps to out-of-town delegates, each marked with the location of toy train layouts that may be visited.

How did San Rafael land the convention? Club members said it was originally scheduled for San Francisco but because of cost and difficulty of getting adequate floor space, the meeting was shifted here where adequate motel accommodation and model showing space could be obtained reasonably.

What makes an antique toy train?

Fred G. Hines, a collector of 86 Embarcadero Way, San Rafael, says that for many authorities the minimum age is around the start of World War II.

Condition and scarcity of any given set determines its collection value, says Hines.

Thus some postwar models are true collector items while many popular sets made before the war are of little value.

Collectors want working models and take little interest in non-working display pieces of however high craftsmanship, it's agreed.

Two operating toy trains have been running around the convention hall.

The last convention of the national group was last year in Los Angeles Its success prompted arrangement for the present regional west coast gathering.

Examiner Sued By 'Last Man' For $650,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bud Boyd, outdoor writer for the San Francisco Chronicle and his family sued the San Francisco Examiner Friday, asking for damages totalling $605,000.

It was the second time in two days that San Francisco's newspaper battle over the Chronicle's "Last Man on Earth" series was brought to Superior Court.

Thursday, the Chronicle sued the Examiner for $1,500,000, charging libel and alleging that the Examiner deliberately published a defamatory and false story about the Boyd series.

Boyd, his wife and three children went into the Trinity Alps June 28. The Chronicle said the purpose was to see how man would fare, in event of atomic war, should he take to the wilderness with only primitive equipment. The Boyds intended to stay for six weeks but gave up after 12 days when family members became ill.

Boyd's suit claimed the Examiner story contained false statements and he alleged that the paper had "acted with malice."

Council Approves Latipac Addition

Final map of the first 209 lots in Marin Bay subdivision on the old McNear Ranch won the approval of the San Rafael City Council at a special meeting Wednesday noon.

Approval was held up Monday night to give the developer, Latipac Perini, Inc., time to get a bond to accompany the final map. The first unit of homesites will be located in the hills above the golf course.

The city council also approved Dominican Heights subdivision of 31 lots at Glen Park Avenue and Williams Street. This was held up at the Monday night meeting so that a sewer easement could be worked out by the developers, Parnow Brothers.

RENTAL SURVEY TOLD:

Landlords View Pets As Better Than Kids

"Amazingly enough, people will rent to a family with a pet rather than a child."

This view of a women tenant in the Mill Valley area was revealed by the Marin County Planning Commission today as indicative of the sort of infortation being volunteered in a current survey of rental conditions throughout the county.

Such candid findings by renters of Marin apartments and houses are expected to be of value in guiding both planners and developers.

"Infants are ecceptable in some places, continued the tenant, teen-agers in others, but the in-between ages seem to be unacceptable to owners of property. It becomes more and more difficult for people with children, especially two or more, to find a place to rent."

The woman who responded from Mill Valley also felt that in the apartment building where she lives, rents are too high since little maintenance work is provided by the owner. She said choice was limited "and we rented here because children and pets were allowed."

Sergeant Hurt In Car Collision

M/Sgt. Don John Bickerstaff, 47, of the 78th Fighter Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base, was hurt when his car was rammed while attempting a left turn northbound on Highway 101 at 8:25 a.m. Thursday half a mile north of the Novato Airport.

William Joseph Hale, 25, Petaluma salesman, said he was overtaking in the left lane when Bickerstaff's car turned across his path from the right lane. The California Highway Patrol, which said both men suffered leg injuries but refused medical aid, cited Bickerstaff on charges of unsafe lane change and causing an accident by turning.

In keeping with the summer theme, guests and club members will don the jeans and cottons for an evening of dancing "under the stars."

Under the supervision of the popular "Chef Al," barbecued refreshments plus a dessert, are being planned by Al Preston, president of the group, and his wife with Arthur and Lois Bradac, co-hosts for this popular event.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Lagunitas Club's Parties Informal

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Back from the cooling fog which swirls off of Monterey Bay and back in the heat of my beloved Marin I've been busy this week catching up on what's happening or happened during my vacation. The Lagunitas Club was my first thought. There's always something going on there in midsummer. Sure enough, a call to Mrs. Oliver Lombardi, who is in charge of social activities, brought the information there's a round robin tennis tournament today and tomorrow and that tonight there's be a barbecue dance. Formal affairs are not popular this time of year. So accordingly the annual midsummer event next month will be a barbecue dance too. It'll take place on Aug. 20.

ENJOYING the month of July in Marin is Mrs. H. C. Keller, former Ross resident. She now has a house on the Marina in San Francisco. For July she has taken the Frank Hayward house in Kent Woodlands. Mrs. Hayward is visiting her mother in Tangier, Morocco.

With Hazel Keller are her two sons, Rick and Jim. On Monday Hazel and Mrs. Andrew Swedlund entertained at a luncheon at the Kent Woodlands home which was followed by bridge. Over from San Francisco came another erstwhile Marinite, Mrs. S. Nicholas Jacob, also Mrs. I. J. Ely. The latter is a former Kent Woodlands resident. It will be good news to many friends here that the Elys hope to return soon. Other guests were Mesdames Jordan L. Martinelli, William J. Dawson, John Campion, Leon Smith, Russell Keil, H. Wallace Hickman, Rowland Chapman, Barlow Ferguson, Frank Paganini, Robert O'Mara, Robert Grady, Andrew Halley, Earll Riley, Arthur Laino, Guy Ciocca, John O'Connell, Robert Quinlan and Irving Lyons. Two vacationers were missed. Mrs. Ralph Palmer was in Carmel and Mrs. John Cahill was visiting in Stockton.

FOR THE CELEBRATION of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Petri, a number of Marin friends are going to San Francisco tomorrow. The Petris are entertaining at a large dinner party at their home on Pacific Avenue. Among their guests will be Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Brennan, Messrs. and Mesdames Andrew Halley; Frank Paganini, Horace Seaman and Leon Smith.

AGAIN the Halleys' name appears as a week ago tonight they entertained at a dinner party for the newly married Thomas Elys (Lucinda Beatie) On her mother's side of the family, Lucinda is Mrs. Halley's cousin. Lucinda and Tom were married at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito early this month.

Guests were Lucinda's parents, the Walter C. Beaties of Ross, Tom's parents, the I. J. Elys, who we said in a paragraph above would soon be moving back to Marin, Lucinda's aunt, Miss June Herkner of San Francisco, the Robert Gradys, Earll Rileys and Donald Hills of Marin, also Tom's brother, Dwight Ely of Vallejo, and his wife, the newly married Peter Dunckels (she is the former Jeanne Maddox and was Lucinda's matron of honor), the Jack Kings of San Francisco also two young San Francisco bachelors, Bruce Lauritzen and Peter Wardel.

A GOURMET dining trek is the weekly get-together of Mesdames R. Lee McDowell, Edward Salomon and E. S. Bodine. They are always on the alert for "new" places to eat and exotic dishes. Last week they had sumptuous fare at Ondine's.

Visiting the McDowells at their Kent Woodland's home was her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Tremyne who left for her home in Salt Lake City, Utah, on Tuesday. For Mrs. Tremyne her three months' stay here was a period of convalescence. She had fractured her foot in a fall last March. Mrs. McDowell flew to Salt Lake City after the accident to be with her mother, who returned home with her. Mrs. Tremyne stayed on to attend the graduation of her granddaughter, Margo McDowell, from Dominican College. Marjo will teach kindergarten in Monterey this fall and will live in Carmel.

PULLING UP STAKES in Marin County for the time being are the Hammond Wrights who have sold their San Anselmo home and on Sept. 7 will leave for a cruise around the world. They will sail on the President Wilson and spend three weeks in Japan and a month in Hong Kong. This is about the pace they will travel on their way to Europe where they will make an indefinite stay. They will be there by January or February. On return to the United States, the Wrights will stay in New York for three or four months. Back in Marin, they will take an apartment.

Pat Wright has been coordinator at Marin Art and Garden Center for 10 years, almost since it was started. On Wednesday, Aug. 3, members of the Northgate Group of the center are honoring Pat at a luncheon there to which her associates and other friends are invited. Mesdames Frank Stratford, John Kirkpatrick and Arthur Feidler are in charge of luncheon arrangements.

A week ago tonight Mr. and Mrs. Leo Diner gave a dinner at their San Francisco home honoring the Wrights and also for them will be the dinner which the Wallace Hickmans are hosting on Sept. 3.

AS USUAL the Henry Skinners will spend about three weeks at the place of her parents, the Albert G. Salas of San Francisco, at the north end of Lake Tahoe near Cal Neva. With the Skinners, who leave early in August, will be their two younger sons, Rick and Gregg. The eldest, Jeff, will remain at home as he has a job. The Skinners will entertain several guests, among them Tod Lindner, son of the Edgar Lindners, and Tuck Weills, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Weills.

Mrs. Lindner with her two daughters, Jane and Maudie, will visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Rennie in Stockton for a week or 10 days and then go to Tahoe where they will be joined by Ed and Tod. Maude and the girls are going to Stockton on the Santa Fe as a train ride will be a thrill for them.

MOVING SOON are the Joseph Rices who are saying farewell to their neighbors in Larkspur at a cocktail party tonight. Joe and Margaret have sold their Palm Hill home and have bought property in Marin Golf and Country Estates. Construction has already begun on a large house. The Rices will also have a swimming pool in their landscaped grounds. Until the house is completed sometime in November or December, the Rices will live at 263 de la Selva in Loma Verde.

TOURING ITALY for two months, has been Dennis Callahan. Dennis, who will be a sophomore at San Rafael High School this fall, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Callahan of San Rafael. The young man and his grandmather, Mrs. Jennie Aldera of San Rafael, flew to Europe, stopped in Paris, then went to Switzerland and Italy. They went to Milan, Turin, Venice, Florence, Rome, Pisa, Naples, Sorrento, Pompeii and Isle of Capri. They returned to northern Italy where Mrs. Aldera remained to visit in Alessandria. Dennis flew back by jet, and made a brief stop in Montreal before returning home.

IT WAS LIKE OLD HOME WEEK when the Russell G. Smiths of Ross entertained at dinner Wednesday night with many of their long time friends present. Guests of honor were Baron Berenberg-Gossler, a banker from Hamburg, Germany who is going to the Bohemian Grove and Mrs. Paul Magnusson of Washington, D.C. Mrs. Magnusson, sister-in-law of Mrs. Harold N. Hansen of Kentfield, is a houseguest of the Hansens. She had attended the Democratic convention and as she is a longtime friend of Adlai Stevenson, She was thrilled at the demonstration for him.

A HOUSE PARTY is being hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul McComish of San Francisco at their Sonoma ranch this week. Among their guests are the Leon Smiths of Del Mesa, and the Francis Donohues, who came over from Chico for the event.

FEATHER RIVER INN will be the vacation locale of the Charles Cains of Greenbrae who will leave the first of August. With them will be Poe Cain's niece, Karen Watts. The Cains' daughter, Cindy, who is at Talawanda Camp near Brockway for three weeks, will be the guests of Karen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Watts, also of Greenbrae when they go to the Lair of the Bear, the U.C. camp near Pinecrest, the second week in August with their family. Also in the group will be the Ed Detricks and the William Millikens and their children.

THE HERBERT CROCKERS and their children, Diana, Kathy and Arthur will leave on a 10 days' vacation the middle of August. The youngsters and their parents are all good riders so they are going to pack in to Diamond D Ranch near Florence Lake in the Sierra.

THE ROBERT LEES of San Rafael, who have been enjoying life at LaJolla, are traveling north to vacation at Feather River Inn.

THE MARBLE MOUNTAINS Wilderness in Siskiyou County will be where the E. M. Shanley family will camp for about 10 days. They will pack in from Sawyers Bar a week from today. With the Shanleys will be their three children, Aurelie, Alexa and Kevin, and Eric Pence, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ames Pence of Ross.

BALBOA BEACH has been the vacation spot of Dr. and Mrs. Orville Grimes and their children for a month. They are returning home soon.

Visiting Glacier Park

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Brockmann of Mill Valley have been vacationing at Glacier National Park in Montana, making their headquarters at Prince of Wales hotel. They will also go to Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise and Edmonton in Canada on their vacation trip.

Chaplin Son Sues To Get Father's Name In Cement

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Charlie Chaplin Jr. is miffed because his famous father's name isn't engraved in the cement of Hollywood's sidewalks.

So he brought suit in Los Angeles superior court Thursday to compel the Los Angeles City Council, the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce and the Hollywood Improvement Assn. to make such a record.

Young Chaplin charges that the groups "arbitrarily and with malice, prejudice and bias" decided not to include his father's name. He termed the elder Chaplin's career "a milestone in the history of picture making."

The celebrated comedian and his family now reside in Switzerland.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counsellor

Conflicting Advice Of Parents Only Serves To Confuse Child

P.R. "I'm ashamed to say my son is a coward. He is 7. Even 6-year-olds bully him. I tell him to stand up for his rights. His mother tells him to give in. He leads a miserable life. Can you straighten us out?"

Reply. No wonder he has troubles. Your conflicting advice confuses him. You and your wife must compromise. You shouldn't expect him to fight at every slight. She shouldn't expect him to give in, no matter what the provocation. Agree on your rules and make them clear to him. Help him acquire the skills that boys admire. Get a turning bar for him to practice on. Help him learn to kick a kickball and bat an indoor ball. Help him learn to throw and catch. Teach him to swim. If he can excel in such things he'll soon develop confidence in himself.

L.F. "My girl is almost 4. Lately she has been very naughty. In the past I've been able to control her without corporal punishment. Now the time is coming when I must spank. Can you give me some rules for spanking small children?"

Reply. Reserve spankings for her most important, most dangerous offenses. Many of us spank too often. When she does something you can't bear to have repeated, crack down. Be sure she understands why you're spanking her. Spank her hard enough to make an impression. She must realize she's being punished. Afterward explain again why the punishment was necessary. By bedtime, be sure she is out of the doghouse.

I.N. "Our son is 18 months old. He is all boy. The worst thing he does is to hurt me. He squeezes my nose until tears come to my eyes. He watches me closely, enjoying every moment of it. He is our only child. Why is he so cruel?"

Reply. Nearly all babies and small children are cruel. You should not let him hurt you. He has to learn to be kind and considerate. If necessary, punish him when he squeezes your nose. Squeeze his.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Austrians Snubbed Nikita To Greet Students In Experimental Living

(The following is a second report from one of the seven Sir Francis Drake High School 1960 graduates in Europe under the Experiment in International Living program. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Simpson of Woodacre.)

By SHIRLEY SIMPSON

WOLFSBERG, Austria — When Premier Kikita Khrushchev arrived for his official visit to Austria, his reception was one of the coolest ever given a visiting dignitary anywhere in the world.

When we experimenters arrived in this southern Austrian town of about 10,000 about the same time, I swear the entire 10,000 people were out to meet and greet us.

In the little time I've been here, I undertsand why. The Austrians are a naturally warm people, a hospitable people. But for many years they lived with communism. Now they live dangerously close to it. They know what it's about and they don't like it. They're polite and they're discreet, but their quiet hostility toward communism is apparent.

We were pretty rocky when we landed in Rotterdam. I had boasted of being a born sailor, but the last two days aboard the S. S. Waterman were fantastic. We spent most of our time on the floor because the furniture was all piled up and lashed down. It was impossible to eat. Not only was it lack of appetite; nothing would stay on the table. The students who weren't violently sick kept in good humor, sometimes joking grotesquely. I can still boast. I didn't get sick.

We spent a few hours in Rotterdam but not enough to regain land legs. Losing one's sense of balance is a strange sensation. Rotterdam is unbelievably modern and spotlessly clean. It's one of Europe's really new cities, because so much of it was leveled during the war. Rebuilding was carefully planned. But the few old sections which remain have a vintage charm.

We were 26 hours on the train. Tiring though the ride became, the countryside was magnificent, especially as we got into Alps country. The mountain villages brought back storybook pictures I thought I had long forgotten.

At Graz we transferred to buses. It was two hours to Wolfsberg and it was one of the wildest rides I've ever experienced. The driver raced through the mountains like lightning. But he seemed to know what he was doing. And there certainly wasn't much traffic.

Wolfsberg is beautiful, set as it is in a valley. Homes and stores are nice, and the people dress extremely well. We felt like refugees, terribly dirty and disheveled, dead tired.

I am staying with Rev. and Mrs. Siegfried Gruber and their two sons, Wilfried, 21, and Wolfgang, 19. Rev. Gruber is a Lutheran minister and the charming church is next door to the house. The family escaped from Poland during the war.

The boys are nice and they are so bright. Wolfgang is a violinist and Wilfried is a pianist, both excellent. The Grubers sing a great deal. The boys speak fair English but the parents speak hardly any.

I don't see the boys much, only at dinner. They're madly studying for final exams. Wolfgang is studying medicine and Wilfried chemistry.

There are lots of little kids around town who remind me of my little brother Bern. The boys all wear little leather pants and the girls wear flowered dresses with white aprons. They're darling.

We're about ready to leave for Venice on a 10-day trip. I'm anxious to go but I feel guilty about leaving Mrs. Gruber. She works so hard. We have no hot water and there are few modern conveniences.

I've been away from home 20 days now. It seems like 20 years.

Death Penalty Education Plan Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has called for a nationwide education program aimed at abolishing capital punishment.

In an article in Good Housekeeping magazine released this week, Brown described the death penalty as a "gross failure."

"It has not deterred the wicked," he said. "It is a thing as evil as the crimes it pretends to punish."

The governor offered a three-point program to substitute for the death penalty:

1. Segregate criminal now subject to the death penalty with irrevocable life sentences.

2. Set up modern correctional facilities for those who can be returned to society.

3. Put emphasis on law enforcement and crime prevention on alertness and hard work rather than relying on terror.

Acre Of Grass Consumed By Fire

Fire consumed one acre of grass on a hillside at the west end of Forbes Avenue in San Rafael's Sun Valley area at 11:25 a.m. yesterday. Two fire trucks rolled but only one, manned by four firemen, was used to extinguish the blaze. No structures were endangered, said Battalion Chief Robert Rogers of the San Rafael Fire Department.

Police were checking a report that the fire was started by a boy about eight years old.

Did You Know?

That the soundest investment in the future that you can make are in

EICHLER HOMES

in

Terra Linda Valley

On a comparison basis with the value of one of the world's most respected automobiles, with the long established record of holding it's value, here is what happens to your investment in America's most wanted homes.

Using automobile dealer-accepted hand book for determining train-in value:

Car purchased in 1954, declined by 1959 to 30% of original cost.

THE EICHLER HOME

purchased in 1954 increased each year by 5% in value to 125% in 1959! Others have been resold for as much as 35% more!

Meanwhile, remember all the interest and taxes were deducted each year from the purchaser's income tax.

You too can still take advantage of this ever rising value now.

Coming Baseball Event Part Of Colorful Nation-Wide Program

WE HOPE sports editor Jim Gilmartin won't mind our poaching a bit in his preserve, but the approach of the 1960 California State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament, scheduled to open in San Rafael next Friday, brings back a flood of memories.

Seems like just about everywhere we go, the National Baseball Congress program, parent of the various state semi-pro tourneys and the big national tournament for which the state champions qualify, follows us around.

We were born and raised a couple of dusty gusts away from Lawrence Stadium in Wichita, Kans., home of the national meet.

And we still recall the first national tournament held back in the early 1930s. It was won by a club playing under the banner of Bismarck, N.D., although not one of the team members had as much as passed through and few had even heard of that city. A phenom named Sachell Paige was the star pitcher for Bismarck. And you can imagine what he did to the opposition.

Through the years we attended the Kansas state and national tournaments regularly in Wichita. And we later wound up covering them as sports editor of the Wichita Evening Beacon.

When we came West and "settled" in Merced, we found that the California state tournament was being fought out in Atwater just a few miles up Highway 99. And the next year we found ourselves wrestling with the job of tournament director.

When we left Merced, we went to northern Washington. And again we found that the state semi-pro meet was based only a short distance away—at Bellingham.

Now in San Rafael, we find that the California tourney has been moved to this city.

It's kind of like running into an old friend everywhere you go.

We were at first skeptical of the wisdom of locating the event right here in the backyard of the San Francisco Giants. But Commissioner S. L. (Brick) Swegle thinks Marin fans will be receptive. And he seems to have the enthusiasm to put it across.

We can promise fans that while there will be no Willie Mayeses nor Orlando Cepedas on the field, there will still be plenty of color and excitement. The sandlotters go at it hammer and tong. And the result is the kind of baseball that made the sport the national game, performed in every hamlet and in every city. Town baseball, unfortunately, has now all but faded away in many areas before the competition of professional ball and the many other present-day forms of entertainment.

Perhaps Swegle can bring Marin forth as one of the remaining strongholds of sandlot baseball.

We can also promise the team which wins in San Rafael an enjoyable stay while there in Kansas bidding for the national title. The tournament is a big thing back there. We can remember several years back when professional baseball moved into Wichita, and many predicted the demise of the non-pro program. But it was the pro-club which folded up. And the semi-pro tournaments are still going strong.

This reversal of the usual trend is largely a tribute to Ray Dumont, the National Baseball Congress chief who is a wizard as a promoter and idea man. He founded the program while working as a salesman in a Wichita sporting goods store. And under his direction, it soon became one of the nation's most colorful sports programs.

Dumont has gained fame for his innovations which have included lady and robot umpires, public address systems that shoot out of the ground and catch hot words between batters and arbiters, automatic home plate dusters, all-night baseball with fans admitted free and served coffee and doughnuts if they come in pajamas, fireworks, etc.

He brought showmanship to baseball long before one Bill Veeck was ever heard from.

The Man At The Helm In San Rafael

Mayor McInnis Strives For A Progressive City

By PAUL MILLER

A thick-haired, handsome boy with a quiet confident manner, whom one would judge to be about 18, stood in front of a counter of the office of the Tacoma Oriental Steamship. Co. He waited for the master and elder seaman, preoccupied with papers behind a desk, to acknowledge his presence.

The old man stayed with his papers, but asked, "What do you want, boy?"

The boy with tanned face and strong artistic hands, and who was actually 15, answered that he "wanted to fill out an application to take a test for a life boat certificate, sir."

The old master impersonally threw an application form on the counter in front of the boy. If accepted it would grant the boy, John Frederick McInnis, who had been in and around boats in Puget Sound for as long as his memory, the right to go to sea as an "ordinary seaman" providing he passed the test.

McInnis filled the form out carefully, proud that he could list a number of years of sailing experience and boat handling in the Sound, especially during the summer. He also wrote that he was born in Tacoma, Wash., July 24, 1913, and that he was a student during the winter at Stadium High School in Tacoma.

THE OLD SEAMAN took back the completed form, glanced at it and gruffly shook his head. "You're not old enough boy. You have got to be 18; here's another form. Fill it out when you're old enough."

McInnis, bright as he was strong, was quick to detect the real meaning of the old man's orders. He took the form home and filled it out as before except that he put his year of birth as 1910. The next day he gave the new application to the old man, who, with the same gruff manner but with twinkling eyes, gave the boy the test for the certificate, required and issued by the United States Steam Boat Inspectors.

That May, McInnis, for the first time in his life, went to sea as an ordinary seaman aboard the S. S. Olympia. His first professional voyage lasted three months.

In September he began school again and two years later, after graduating, shipped out with the same company. This time he went as a general hand in the engine room, "where it was warm," he recalled, "because we routed the Aleutian Islands and the Bering Strait" and were away for 13 months.

The discipline and rigors of his seamanship continued to mold McInnis into a strong, confident and practical young man. He went to sea again in 1933 after a year's study at Washington State College. On his second cruise he was an assistant engineer aboard a tug that towed a drill scow and hopper barge from San Pedro Harbor to the inland waters of Wrangle, Alaska. It was a rugged and responsible trip and involved leaving the barge at Seattle until it could be towed on up on a second trip.

IN SEPTEMBER of 1934 McInnis entered the University of Washington where he majored in insurance in the School of Business Administration. He did not go to sea again until he was an ensign in World War II, and then only twice, and for not longer than a month both times.

The Navy, well aware of his background, assigned him to the Midshipman's School, Abbott's Hall, Northwestern University, on the Chicago campus to teach navigation, but decided there was a greater need for a gunnery and ordnance instructor.

It was during this professorship that McInnis went to sea again. He was aboard a destroyer for a week on Lake Michigan, and on a battleship for a month on the Chesapeake Bay, and both times to observe.

McInnis did not limit his work at the midshipman's school to class instruction. He and six other instructors felt the assigned text was of "World War I vintage." The instructors went to the commander of the school with their criticism which resulted in the text being re-written by McInnis and his colleagues. They compiled their work in a looseleaf text so it could be kept up to date. It eventually became a required addition to all ship libraries as well as the basic text for first year gunnery classes at the United States Naval Academy.

McInnis, along with three of the same teachers, was also the author and editor of an illustrated gunnery manual which complemented the revised text. He was discharged as a full lieutenant in 1947.

TODAY JOHN McInnis is mayor of San Rafael, a proud city of more than 20,000 inhabitants. His long span from seamanship to politics includes a third field: Insurance.

McInnis received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Washington in 1937. He majored in insurance through the influence of his older sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, an officer in the United Pacific Insurance Co. in Seattle. He had watched the opportunities and service to the public offered by those in the insurance business as he did odd jobs in her office as a teen-ager. He absorbed knowledge at an unusually young age in the expanding field of property protection.

During his formal schooling in insurance, McInnis was manager of Mannings Inc. coffee stores in Seattle between classes and when not studying. Later he became an assistant night manager of a Manning's restaurant in that city. McInnis worked part time, and full time during summers, for the duration of his university training.

McInnis graduated during the depression. He piled into a Model T Ford and rumbled his way to San Francisco where, after some luck and hustling, he was offered one of three jobs in the insurance field: Brokerage, map clerking or junior underwriting. He took the most responsible and challenging of the three and became a broker for a general agency that insured everything from human limbs to pet animals.

THE TWO MEN who bear the brunt of San Rafael city government responsibilities talk over some municipal business. John F. McInnis, right, San Rafael mayor since 1957, confers with City Manager Dan Andersen about affairs of their rapidly growing municipality.

(Independent-Journal photos)

Two years later, after the experience in versatile coverage, he joined the Northwest Mutual Insurance Co. During his time with the company he was an inspector in its Northern California region; worked in fire protection; was in accounting; did farm products underwriting and was a special agent in San Francisco, the East Bay and other California areas.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, through an old college buddy, McInnis met Lois McMurchy, an attractive and efficient brunette who became Mrs. McInnis in that city in 1941.

In 1947 the couple moved to the city in which they both had dreamed of living: San Rafael. McInnis became a special agent for the whole northern coast for the next four years. A little more than a year after they were in Marin County they moved to 19 Billou Street in the Bret Harte section of San Rafael where they lived until last September when they moved to a house they had built at 36 Dumfries Terrace.

During his early years, McInnis had hoped someday to have his own business and later this desire increased when his company work was keeping him more and more from his family which also had increased to a son, James (Jay), and a daughter, Susan Evelyn. He had already demonstrated his concern by turning down a position that would have made him a company agent for several western states.

In 1950 McInnis knew he would have to break hard and clean if he were to ever fulfill his ambition of being his own boss. That year he quit the company, and in three rough years established himself as a self-employed insurance broker in San Rafael.

San Rafael Mayor In Profile

His first clients found his office in the McInnis home; six months later he leased space in a real estate office on the Miracle Mile in San Rafael, and in July, 1954, he occupied (and still does) a corner office in the Masonic Building in downtown San Rafael.

"I write all insurance except life," said McInnis. "It is my purpose, however, not to become the biggest writer, but rather to give careful and personal service." This is not a lyrical advertising slogan to McInnis.

IF ONE WERE to visit his office and hear him quietly and masterfully dictate a letter to his wife who works on a flexible schedule as his secretary "to keep it a family endeavor," one would hear the concern of McInnis not only for the problems of insurance discussed, but also sincere sympathy for an unfortunate incident or inquiry as to welfare of a particular client's family, whom he knows personally.

THE McINNIS family is close, but at the same time no member has lost his individuality. James, 15, a sophomore at San Rafael High School, is a letterman on the varsity swimming team; Susan, 12, is a bustling Bluebird, organizing here, there and everywhere; and Mrs. McInnis is not only a personal secretary for her husband as well as a proficient house wife, but is active, along with her children, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael. A family, McInnis feels, "should be a working unit from which all its members have their own individual activities."

McInnis' childhood was different than James and Susan's. His father, George McInnis, came from Scotland where he was born by way of Canada to Tacoma and became a fruit and produce wholesaler, a hard and competitive occupation.

McInnis' mother, Helene Tudsen McInnis, came to Tacoma from Germany just before World War I. She died unexpectedly in 1927 when John was 14. Beginning the very day of her death, John took over the management of the house and care of his 6-year-old brother, Paul. Two older sisters, Elizabeth and Laura, had already married and left the family home before Helene McInnis died. An older brother, Henry, like his father, was working. Thus John McInnis knew heavy responsibility even before he went to sea.

MAYOR McINNIS is a handy man with his hands. Here he shows a scale model of a clipper ship which he made over a two and a half year period. He also does fine art woodcarving as a hobby.

During his life, in addition to his civic and business duties, McInnis has always kept his other interest active. For instance, in his youth he made model boats, and later joined the Pacific Marine Research Society. Influenced by the organization's historical attitude, McInnis put in two years and six months work and research building a scale model of the clipper ship, "Sovereign of the Seas." He has not limited his handy work to models, however, for he has done work in fine art woodcarving. One of his proudest pieces is a carving of a pair of Balinese busts. McInnis was also able to apply his skill during the war when he built a moving model of a target plane to illustrate gunnery techniques to students.

Another pastime was public speaking which has undoubtedly influenced his position as a politician.

In 1938 McInnis became a member of the Toastmasters Club of downtown San Francisco and two years later won an international speaking contest sponsored by the national organization. He spoke on the relationship of parental training to juveniles and automobiles. To get to the contest, held in Santa Cruz, he had to speak his way through local, state and national events. Among other speech awards, he holds the honored Garner Gavel.

TODAY McInnis has taken up outdoor interests for the small amount of spare time he may take from his family and profession. Activities which force him into sport shirts rather than his seeminly perpetual bow ties and unwrinkled, white, short-sleeved, dress shirts.

"I've turned into a do-it-yourself landscaper at home and it is a fearful and wonderful undertaking," he asserts.

Hard work substituted for athletics in his youth, and to perhaps fill that gap, McInnis recently took up golf—in a most dramatic fashion. His first time out on a course in Sonoma, he made a hole-in-one!

Out of all this McInnis still finds time to take off at 10:30 a. m. two or three Wednesdays a month with Mrs. McInnis and spend the day in San Francisco and later in the evening have a "quiet dinner together followed, at times by the theater."

A great portion of his time and thought is taken up by his city, and the result is apparent. For five years on the council he fought for off-street parking, new lighting for the city and street improvement programs. Today downtown San Rafael has modern lighting with similar utilities planned for the entire city. Largely through his leadership, San Rafael now has off-street parking and all of its streets are repaired, in repair or are planned to be repaired.

McINNIS WAS elected mayor in April, 1957, with twice as many votes as his opponent, incumbent Mayor Edward Culver. Before McInnis became mayor he had served on the city council four years. He placed second highest in a field of five candidates in 1953 when he won the council seat.

Even before he was a councilman he served the community in an active manner. In 1952 he was president of the Bret Harte Civic Assn. Later he was president of the San Rafael Optimist Club; a critic (instructor) in the Marin Toastmasters Club 890; and a member of the Marin Masonic Lodge, for which he is now secretary of its building association.

McInnis has seemed to apply about the same philosophy to city politics as he has to his business. When asked if he would like to see San Rafael become a huge city, he answered no, but rather that he preferred that San Rafael "be led into being the most progressive and prosperous community in Marin County, and the most pleasant in which to live."

Jack's No Ordinary Oat Eater

By DON KEOWN

Youngsters riding their ponies are a common Sleepy Hollow sight.

It is, then, something of a surprise to learn that the stable at the 705 Butterfield Road home of the Robert C. Clapham family is a big attraction for children of the area.

Why this attraction, even for children who have ponies of their own? It's because Jack makes his home with the Claphams. And he's no ordinary "oater." In fact, he's no horse. He's a jackass, and proud of it.

Rev. Robert Clapham, pastor of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church, says it all happened this way:

About a year ago the Claphams moved to the church's new parsonage in Sleepy Hollow. And the family had a happy surprise—the grounds included stable facilities.

AND NATURALLY, the Clapham children, Roberta Lee (Bobbie Lee), 6, and William (Kit), 4, wanted a pony like so many of the other youngsters of the area.

Reverend Clapham began looking around for such a pet. And among those to whom he mentioned the matter was a friend and riding enthusiast, Frank Monte.

About six months ago Monte called up to inform the pastor that "I haven't found you a pony yet, but I have come up with something you might like—a jackass."

"What?" asked the somewhat taken back Reverend Clapham.

"A jackass," repeated Monte, "and he's no ordinary donkey."

This donkey, Monte explained, was all white, a rarety among his kind.

So the Claphams took a look at Monte's find and were won over. The previous plans for a pony were abandoned. And Jack, as the new pet was most logically named, had a new home.

Jack has his disadvantages.

For instance, he is far from a satisfactory riding mount. The Clapham youngsters and their playmates do climb astride him occasionally. But Jack is so big and so strong that the children must be closely supervised. So he's no substitute for a riding pony.

AND JACK has one bad habit. He brays — loudly and continually. And especially at night.

One neighbor has complained, Reverend Clapham admits.

"But for the most part, they have either become accustomed or resigned to his braying," he adds. "Some even say they have learned to enjoy the sound."

But Jack also has his strong points. And the big one is his personality.

"He's just about the friendliest critter imaginable," Reverend Clapham says. "He likes everyone, and everyone likes him. The neighbor kids think he's the most."

And so, even if Jack isn't a showy or even dependable steed, he's found a permanent home with the Claphams.

"Yes, we're going to keep him," says the pastor. "The kids, and not just our own, would be broken-hearted if we got rid of Jack now."

AND REVEREND Clapham thinks he has even come up with the solution to the nighttime braying problem.

A friend advised the Claphams to keep their pet inside the barn at night, with the doors all closed so that Jack could not see the lights of passing automobiles and other distractions.

The Claphams tried it. And it worked. And things are now relatively peaceful once more in Sleepy Hollow — at least after dark— with Jack returning to his old nocturnal habits only occasionally.

And Bobbie Lee and Kit Clapham are as proud of their unusual pet as any owner of a fine Arabian show horse.

He may not be handsome, they will admit. But he's lovable. And he is their's.

THIS IS JACK, the all-white donkey who has won his way into the hearts of the members of the Robert C. Clapham family. And the unusual pet is also a favorite of children throughout the Sleepy Hollow neighborhood. Here he is tethered to a tree in the Clapham back yard with a can of his favorite oats nearby. (Independent-Journal photos)

ORIGINALLY, Bobbie Lee and Kit Clapham wanted a riding pony. But now they're happy with and proud of Jack. He's noisy. And he's not the best riding steed. But he's a friendly fellow with a lot of personality, the Claphams say.

NEW HOPE IN MARIN

Grief, Discrimination Pursue Epileptics

By MARGET and R. D. LAYMAN

In his satire "Erewhon," Samuel Butler constructed an upside-down society in which criminals were considered ill and ill people were treated as criminals. It appears he was about half right; it has long been accepted that in many cases a criminal may be mentally ailing, and crime may be the result of mental illness.

But who, in his right mind in the second half of the 20th Century, would brand someone with a physical disorder a criminal?

Lots of people. Legislators, teachers, insurance men, policemen, employers and plenty of other folks, including lots of parents. For fantastic as it sounds, there IS a physical disorder you can be punished for having. You will be punished for having it in much the same manner the criminal is punished—by deprivation of your civil rights.

Should you develop this condition, you can be:

1. Automatically disqualified from being employed in practically any job.

2. Fired summarily if you do have a job.

3. Forbidden to attend school.

4. Forbidden, in some states, to marry, or, if married, forbidden (by surgery) to have children (on pain of imprisonment).

5. Forbidden to drive a car.

6. Forbidden to hold disability, medical, life or unemployment insurance.

The physical disorder that results in these penalties is not contagious, not inheritable, not disfiguring, not necessarily mentally or physically handicapping. Nor is it rare—it affects more persons in the United States than cerebral palsy, tuberculosis and polio combined; some researchers estimate one in every 200 persons has it to some degree.

And it isn't even a disease—it is a symptom of an injury to the brain.

So why should the afflicted person be punished by rejection from employment, marriage education, financial security for no valid physical reason at all? The rejection stems simply from ignorance and fear; ignorance and fear created by the superficial manifestations of the symptom; ignorance and fear based for centuries on a word: Epilepsy.

A new group forming in Marin is dedicated to overcoming the effects of this ignorance and fear. It is a Marin chapter of the California Epilepsy Society. This society, now with 10 chapters in the state, is battling on many fronts to save the epileptic person from second class citizenship. It carries on the effort through legislation, education, case work service and medical research.

The Marin group, as yet not formally organized, held public and preliminary organizational meetings late last spring, and hopes to complete organization and start a service program during late summer and fall. Already the local group has, with help of state Epilepsy Society officials, found a definite need for a program of assistance to epileptics in Marin. Preliminary canvassing has uncovered many cases of job and social discrimination against epileptics.

It appears, however, that educational discrimination is less of a problem in Marin than many other places. Many of the parents of epileptic children indicated they found local school systems well-advised on the problems of the epileptic child, and willing to integrate him into normal classroom activity.

But back to the word that is the cause of all this. What is epilepsy?

The word stems from the Greek for "seizure." Certainly the seizure is the typical symptom of the epileptic. But there are many types of seizures, ranging from the terrifying "grand mal" to a momentary lapse of consciousness. It is often likened to an electrical storm in the brain. Herbert Yahraes, in the Public Affairs Pamphlet "Epilepsy—the Ghost is Out of the Closet," says perhaps the best way to define a seizure is "a temporary loss or impairment of consciousness. It usually occurs without apparent cause and it is usually accompanied by muscular movements which may range anywhere from a slight twitching of the eyelids to a violent shaking of the entire body."

It is this "violent shaking" of the "grand mal" seizure that has created much of the terror and prejudice that surround the word epilepsy. And it is a frightening thing to witness: The victim is totally unconscious, he may foam at the mouth, his body writhes and jerks as if in fiendish torment, he may bite his mouth so the saliva is bloody, he may void urine. When he recovers consciousness he is bewildered, not recognizing his friends or his surroundings. It is the aspect of epilepsy that has given rise to many "old wives' tales."

This type of seizure, however, is only one of many. Seizures grade down to the least noticeable, called the "petit mal," which may be so fleeting as to be completely overlooked.

But it is the grand mal aspect which the uninformed and miseducated public solely associates with epilepsy. The old tales based on superstition would have you believe there is "something wrong" with the epileptic. Well, there is something wrong, but it's no more mysteriously or supernaturally wrong than what is wrong with the sufferer from cancer, tuberculosis or muscular dystrophy. Epilepsy is not a result of insanity or feeble-mindedness, and it is not the result of "mental weakness" in the family. It is not hereditary, although in some cases there may be a pre-disposition toward it as in several diseases.

What causes epilepsy? Remember it is not a disease. It is a reaction to brain damage. Such damage can be the result of a birth injury, a serious fever, or a head injury; as for example in an auto accident. A lack of sufficient oxygen to the brain, from any cause, at any age, may result in damage producing epilepsy.

It could happen to you. Or your child. Or your next door neighbor. It could happen, statistically speaking, with a great deal more likelihood than all but a very few of the diseases which are household words.

What can be done to cure epilepsy? There is actually no "cure," save surgery in very rare cases to eradicate the damaged area in the brain. What can be done is to control the number and/or severity of seizures, so they cease to interfere with the normal life of the patient. This is accomplished by medication.

You take your pills and you don't have seizures.

This is over-simplification, but essentially it's the fact of life to hundreds of thousands of epileptics. There are a number of medicines to accomplish this, and sometimes it takes many months before the physician can determine the effective dosage for the individual. The medication must be used under the supervision and instruction of a qualified physician, usually a neurologist.

Once this is accomplished and the epileptic has mastered his seizures, his problems may have just begun. At the risk of generalization, it is probably safe to say that the social problems of epilepsy today are much worse than its medical problems.

Epileptics in California are more fortunate in some respects than those in other states. The well-controlled epileptic here eventually can get a driver's license (and few if any epileptics would quarrel with restrictions on driving by the ill-controlled) and the shockingly archaic marriage laws of several states have no counterpart here.

Aside from this, the social prejudice and rejection is just as bad in California and in Marin as elsewhere.

The epileptic child may be less likely to be banned from school, but the epileptic adult still finds his friends avoiding him and the prospective employer saying "We've hired somebody else."

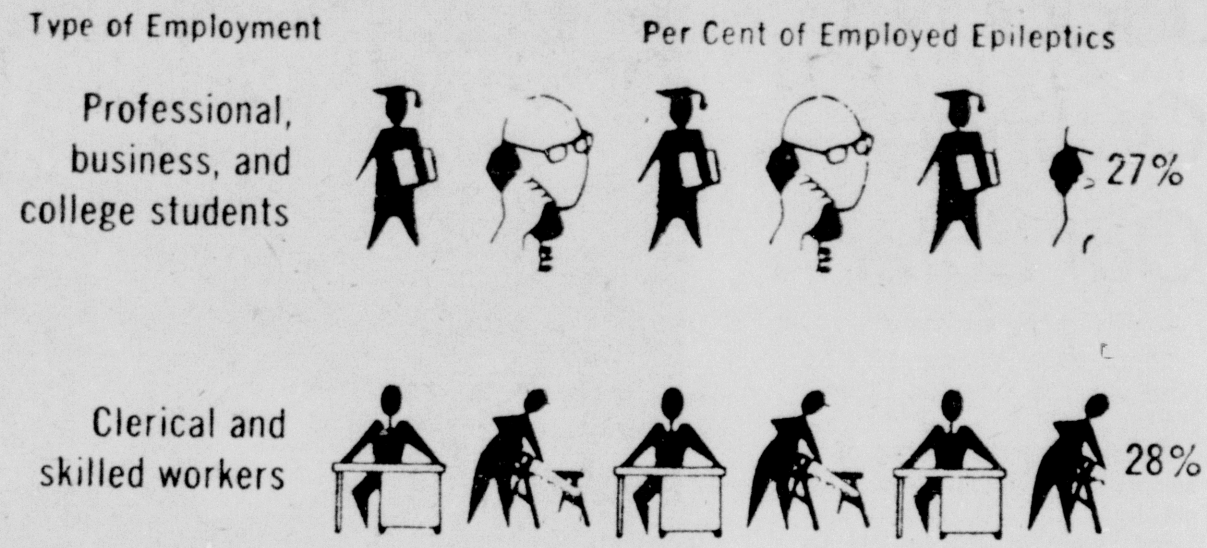
And the insurance companies here, as elsewhere, are self-guardedly behind the times. They feel an epileptic is much more of a risk than anybody else; he might fall down and injure himself.

Who couldn't?

An epileptic frequently has a warning "aura" of his impending seizure, long enough to get out of harm's way in a factory, long enough to seclude himself if he's in a job where he deals with the public.

Furthermore, many studies have shown workers with epilepsy have safety records as good or better than those without the condition.

These are some of the problems of the epileptic. The Marin chapter of the California Epilepsy Society hopes when its organization is completed to make a start in helping to solve some of them.



PERCENTAGES of employed epileptics in skilled jobs is shown above. Of the remaining 45 per cent, 20 per cent are employed as sales and service workers while 25 per cent are unskilled laborers. (Chart courtesy California Epilepsy Society)

WHAT TO DO FOR EPILEPTIC

Epileptic seizures may be so mild as to be unnoticeable, or they can be frighteningly violent. But none is as bad as it may look, and you can assist the victim by observing a few commonsense rules. Should such a relative or friend have a seizure in your presence, the California Epilepsy Society recommends:

1. Keep calm. The patient is not suffering or in danger.

2. Help him to a safe place, but do not restrain his movements.

3. Loosen tight clothing and turn him on his side.

4. Do not force a hard object between his teeth.

5. Do not give him anything to drink.

6. Do not call a doctor or other authority, except in cases of prolonged and repeated seizures.

7. Stand by until the patient has fully recovered consciousness. Assure him all is well and encourage him to go about his business.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Aire
Member Textile Maintenance Committee University of California

"What Does a Drycleaner Do That I Cannot to Remove Spots?"—Mrs. T.L.E.

Dear Mrs. T. L. E.:

I would suggest that you visit your local dry cleaner and ask to see his "spotter" at work. The National Institute of Dry Cleaning describes a "spotter" in this way. "He is the most skilled and highest paid worker in a dry cleaning plant. He must have a thorough knowledge of fibers, fabrics and dyes. He has 20 or more stain removal agents in little bottles at his spotting board. He has to be an expert in the use of them all. He must understand the chemistry of stain removal. Through experience he recognizes most stains, since customers often fail to explain what went into a given stain. Hanging all about the spotter are air hoses, steam hoses and other mechanical aids with which he may dislodge stains from clothing, or which he may use to dry any portion of the garment he has dampened.

"To watch the professional spotter in action, you marvel at his quick efficient movements, his confident know-how and you realize how poorly qualified the average person is to remove spots at home."

Few customers realize how expert their dry cleaners are. The spotter who makes his living working day after day, removing spots, is one of the specialists who are at your service for a few pennies a garment. He has equipment you would not want to buy and the skill it would take you years and years to gain. Placing your soiled garments in his care is probably one of the best investments you can make.

Author Scores 'Decade Of Decline'

Eben Neal Baty Volume Spotlights Decline of American Prestige Abroad

CITIZEN ABROAD by Eben Neal Baty, The Viking Press, 264 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Carl Williams.

Eben Neal Baty is a young-at-heart old man with a crackling sense of humor, a penchant for speaking his mind and, quite possibly, a best seller to his credit in his first book.

A retired banker-lobbyist, he lives with his wife Emmy in what he likes to call "Baty's Top of the Mark" overlooking Paradise Cove in Tiburon.

The couple took a trip around the world in 1958.

The result three titles and 16 months later was "Citizen Abroad," a Viking-published account of their travels which may well shake up a reading public like no other book has done since Tom Paine's "Common Sense."

Their trip was definitely not of the commonplace, sightseeing variety. Ruins, temples, shrines and monuments were not targets for the Baty tour. Rather, his time was spent visiting, talking and exchanging ideas with as fascinating a collection of characters one could hope to meet on either side of the ocean.

They include Jimmy, a "gentleman smuggler" who, Baty laments, was since caught plying his trade and tossed in a Bombay jail; Mr. Nahas and Mr. Masi, two Egyptians who in Cairo presented Mrs. Baty with beautiful roses; an un-named Russian porter who spoke no English but who preferred Scotch to Vodka; and even kind words for an egotistical, boring ship's captain, who in the author's words, "damned near ruined our trip."

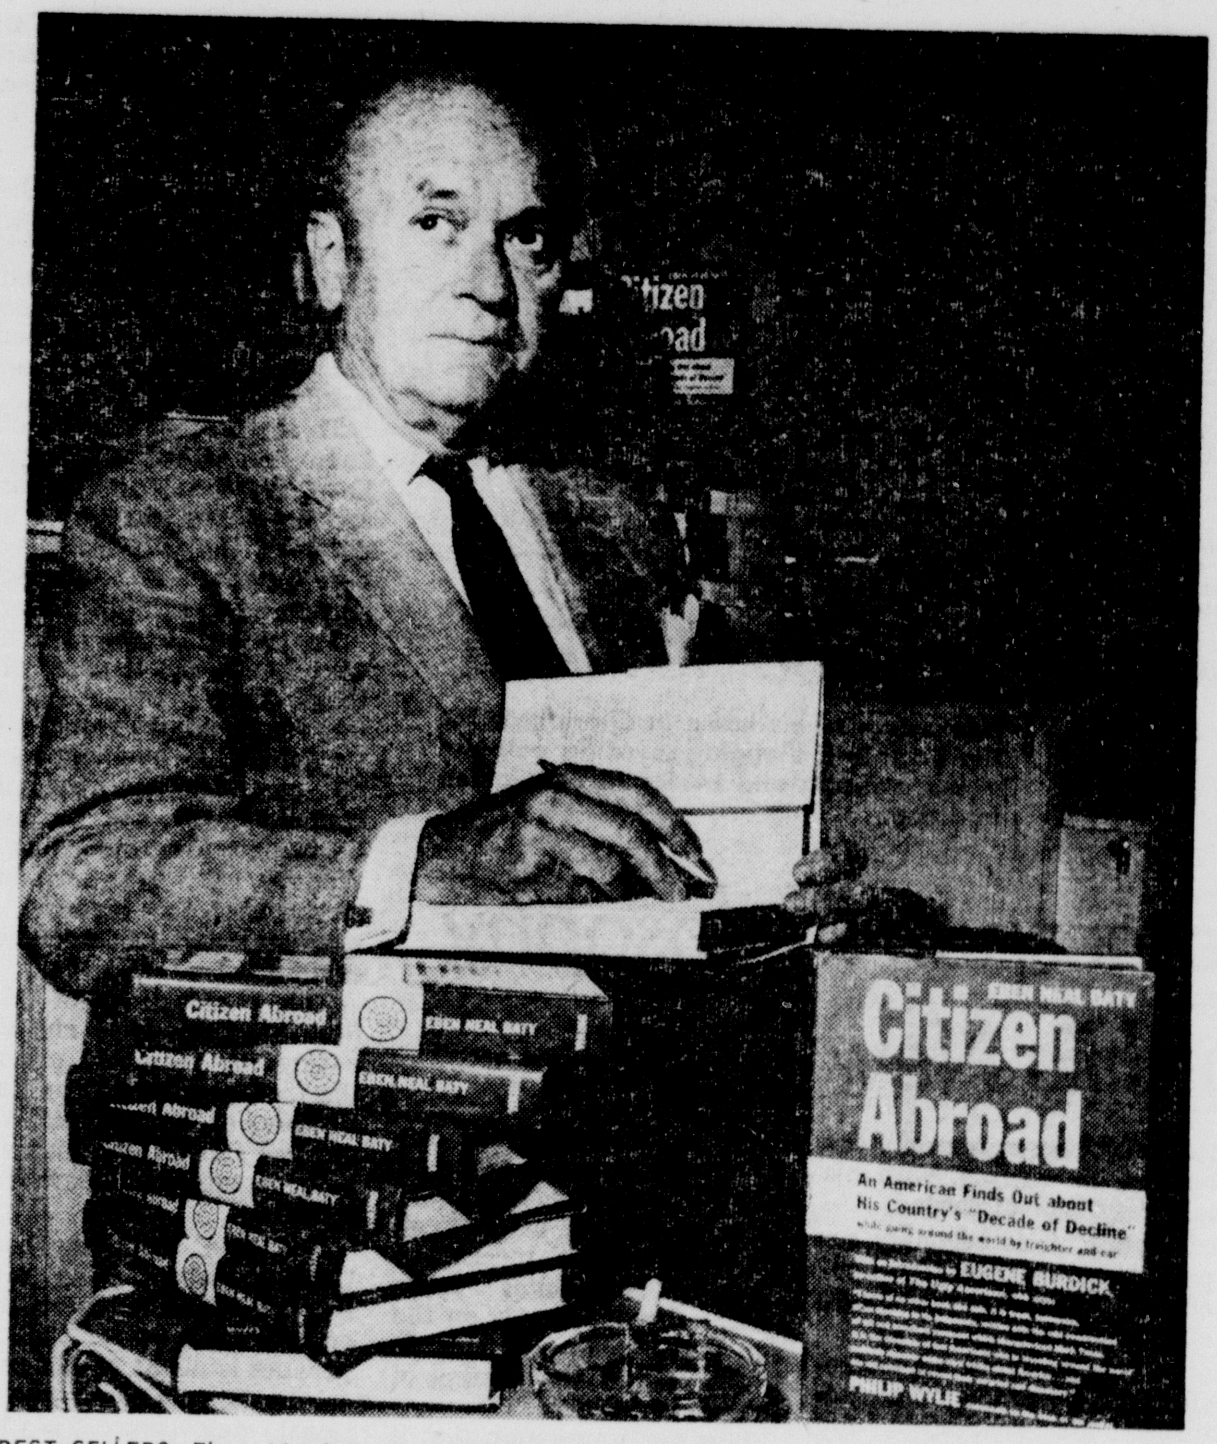
It is a book that will arouse many readers to anger, a fact which will please the author no end, I am sure. If ever a book was ever written deliberately to cause anger, and action, this one heads the list.

Baty pulls no punches when he speaks of what he calls America's "Decade of Decline" and the men whom he feels have brought about the decline of our country's prestige abroad.

Baty bills himself as a "Democrat of sorts." He said he worked hard for Wendell Wilkie, did not vote for Truman (which he considers a probable mistake), helped get President Eisenhower nominated (which he considers unquestionably a mistake), and regrets his feelings that Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson dragged their feet through the 86th Congress. He regrets even more that a group of "shortsighted politicians forced the withdrawal of Nelson Rockefeller as presidential candidate."

With a background of banking and an income derived from investments in large corporations, Baty admits he could well have been an "ultraconservative, somewhat to the right of the National Assn. of Manufacturers and the DAR, if that were possible."

Instead, he "regards most highly the American Civil Liberties Union, the League of Women Voters, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, the Quakers . . . and many other similar organizations."



BEST SELLER?—Eben Neal Baty of Tiburon, author of the new book, "Citizen Abroad," autographs copies of his first literary effort at the Cottage Book Shop in San Rafael. Baty, a retired banker-lobbyist, went around the world with his wife in 1958. The book, a down-to-earth critique of what the author calls our "Decade of Decline," was born of observations and discussions with people in 23 countries.

In an introduction to the book, Eugene Burdick, co-author of "The Ugly American," cautions the reader to "be prepared for a bundle of surprises.

"Mr. Baty not only revives the old American tradition of free and open criticism, but he does it in an unorthodox literary manner," Burdick said. Comparing him to the Mark Twain tradition, Burdick adds that Baty has Twain's eye for local color and his rare ability to relate what he saw to the larger problems of politics.

Pointing out how the author switches from a description of the Taj Mahal to a salty comment on President Eisenhower's many vacations and from exotic foreign scenery to some practical comments on the sad drift of American destinys Burdick cautions the book may come as somewhat of a shock "to those readers who have become used to the convention that a travel book must be a travel book and a political essay must be a political essay . . ."

AN OUTSANDING feature of the book, at least in literary circles, is the fact that it was endorsed by Philip Wylie, a man noted for endorsing nothing.

"If you can read 'Citizen Abroad' and still imagine your great country is safe, it's policies are sane, its future secure . . . you are sick and self-deceived; and you need, far more than a swimming pool or a new car, a psychiatrist and his couch," Wylie said of the work.

As much as he may appreciate the assistance and prestige of plugs by men like Wylie and Burdick, I suspect Baty values even more highly a letter from one Robert L. Clipson, a linotype operator who set the galleys for the book.

"There is a slang expression in the printing trade to describe jobs which are easy to do or which we enjoy doing. These jobs are 'gravy'," Clipson wrote. "The linotype composition on 'Citizen Abroad' was pure 'gravy' for me. In 15 years of putting out type, these were the most enjoyable galleys I have ever set.

"Twice, after I had finished my shift of work, I remained to finish reading a chapter on which I had started the composition.

"Remember the characters who, during Truman's 1948 campaign speeches would yell, 'Give 'em Hell, Harry!' Well, I felt the same way reading your political comments. I wanted to yell, 'Give 'em Hell, Baty!"

In all, Baty and his wife spent eight months visiting 23 countries, traveling by plane, train, ship and a black Mercedes convertible they picked up in Stuttgart, Germany, which today sits handsomely in their Paradise Drive garage.

The resulting book is, as Baty says, an expression of "awakening indignance."

The writing itself, he admits, was hard labor, pure and simple. Writing in longhand for 16 months, often 10 hours a day, he said he was tempted many times to give up the whole project.

"I didn't though," he says with obvious pride. "And the reason I didn't is because during those months I built a shrine—a shrine I promised I would finish."

The shrine, which he showed me atop his piano, consists of photographs of his seven grandchildren who, he said, "do not deserve to inherit the mess we have created for them.

"I am an old man and the greater part of my life is over and done with. But their lives are only beginning and perhaps this book may have some small influence in making that life better."

Had he intended to write a book when he started the trip?

"Let's say the book, like Topsy, just growed," he answered. On all the trips he has taken with his wife, they have kept a running log, he explained. "Just notes to refresh our memories when we look back on our trips."

At the insistence of friends, he finally agreed to undertake a genuine literary effort.

Like most authors, his effort did not sell the first time out. As a matter of fact, it was mailed out several times before Viking informed him that they thought he had a good thing in the works and urged him to re-submit it — with changes.

Once the change were made, they pulled out all the stops, giving the book a "crash treatment" by rushing it to publication within two months after he signed his contract, a process usually requiring from six months to a year.

He is still not used to the fact he is a published writer. But he said he did drop in on the Algonquin Hotel in New York the last time he was there, "just to scribble my name on the wall alongside the rest of the writers who have hung out there."

From reports of advance sales of the volume, I would venture to say the old Algonquin crowd will welcome him to the brotherhood.

I proudly welcome his name scribbled on the flyleaf of my copy of his book, done following a most enjoyable afternoon of good Scotch and stimulating conversation.

It says, simply: "To Carl Williams, in whom I recognize a kindred spirit."

HIS NEW BOOK, "Enjoy, Enjoy!" out of the way, author-columnist-editor Harry Golden relaxes in his favorite rocking chair on the front porch of his home in Charlotte, N.C. The book is a thought-provoking potpouri of wit, wisdom and humor in the Golden tradition.

Golden's Homespun Philosophy At Its Best In His New Book

ENJOY, ENJOY by Harry Golden, World Publishing Co., 315 pages, $4. Reviewed by Don Keown.

We're read Harry Golden's column off and on for years, but we never really became a fan of his. Now, after reading his book, we wonder why we didn't.

Perhaps the answer is that this book represents only the best of his writing, with his lesser efforts discarded.

Anyway, it is certainly superior reading fare—the kind of stuff that makes you laugh, but also makes you think.

For the first time we understand why Golden has acquired his reputation for homespun philosophy and satire. In his book he is certainly well worth listening to.

We like his suggestion that since whites call blacks "colored," shouldn't blacks, in fairness, call whites "colorless." His little essay on the age of metaphor is a gem. So is the one on the passing of the pamphleteer.

It is our impression that it is in his shorter—from one to four or five paragraphs—pieces that Golden is most effective.

But the overall result of reading this book is an increase of appreciation for the courage of this New Yorker who has moved into the South and does not hesitate to speak his mind, even though his opinions are one which are frequently highly unpopular with his neighbors. And who can debunk without being mean about it, deflate without ridiculing, sentimentalize without becoming mushy.

"He writes from the heart," says son Harry Golden Jr. of his father in the book's forword. And a wise and understanding heart, it must be.

Wyatt Earp—Was He Hero Or Heel?

THE EARP BROTHERS OF TOMBSTONE, by Frank Waters. Clarkson N. Potter, Inc., 231 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

FRANK WATERS
No admirer of Wyatt

The dispute over whether Wyatt Earp was a great western peace officer or a crooked gambler and cold-blooded killer is likely to continue as long as anyone cares enough about the Old West to read and write about it.

To my brother Milton, who knew and talked with Wyatt Earp, Wyatt was the genuine article—a real man by standards of the Old West. And my brother is extremely shrewd at spotting a phony.

To author Frank Waters, who knew and talked with Virgil Earp's widow, Wyatt was "a lifelong exhibitionist ridiculed alike by members of his own family, neighbors, contemporaries and the public press." Also, according to Waters, he was a criminal mastermind, a bigamist, a murderer and just about everything else that is bad.

The recollections of Allie Sullivan Earp when she was nearly 100 years old provide the framework for "The Earp Brothers of Tombstone." Waters has filled them out with both research and dark conjecture.

This is a debunking book. Unfortunately, as so often happens with debunkers, Waters has gone so far that the product is about as nonsensical on the one side as the fictional television "Wyatt Earp" programs are on the other.

To paint the Earps — and especially Wyatt—as black as possible, he makes such characters as Ike Clanton and Curly Bill Broscius (or Graham) models of integrity, while judges and businessmen of Tombstone cannot be trusted at all.

The anti-Earp Tombstone newspaper becomes "noted for the accuracy of its reports," while the pro-Earp paper was, according to Waters, a laughingstock. The publisher of one was a dedicated public servant because he got an appointment as deputy collector of customs; that of the other, an "office grabber" because he was elected mayor and appointed postmaster.

All the Republicans (because Earp was a Republican) are painted black; all the Democrats (because that was the anti-Earp party in Tombstone) are pure white.

Waters is perturbed at great length because Stuart N. Lake's "official" biography of Wyatt Earp glosses over or distorts some events to produce a favorable picture of its hero—as any such "official" biography always does.

The writer has dug up some pertinent facts about Earp's career—though he has ignored as many others. It is unfortunate that he became almost psychotic in his debunking.

The Earp legend needs some debunking. But it needs fair treatment. It gets none here.

"Hello, George,"
And I listen
To an old man ramble.
I do not laugh
As others do;

George never quite hears,
For I am listening
And caring.

Marin's Oyster-Growing Johnsons

They Find Cool Drake's Bay Ideal For The Crop

By DOROTHY SIMPERS

Ever since 21-year-old Tom Johnson can remember, a pair of hip boots and a pair of gloves — and oyster beds — have been a part of his life.

When he was six, he earned 10 cents for helping clean his dad's oyster cannery in Ocean Park, Wash. His brother, Ben, then 9, was paid 15 cents for making boxes.

Today Tom and Ben and their father, Charles, share ownership of one of Marin County's fastest growing industries. The Johnson Oyster Co. on Drake's Estero expects to gross $115,000 by the end of this year and $160,000 next year.

Two years ago the Johnsons grossed $57,000 and last year the take was $90,000.

Johnson's is one of only three commercial firms in California growing oysters for the wholesale market.

The Marin company has about 2,500 acres leased from the state in Drake's Estero, Tomales Bay and Bolinas Bay. On this acreage the Johnsons have 16,333,263 oysters in the process of growing, according to a Department of Fish and Game survey.

AND THEY are tastier oysters than the northern variety, says the enthusiastic elder Johnson. He has been an oysterman for 21 years, all over the world, and Drake's Bay is the best spot he has seen for oysters, he says.

The temperature is ideal; fog keep the waters cool, and there are mud beds out of the wind and away from fast moving tides.

Johnson's oyster seeds are imported from Japan where the oysters spawn in the warm waters. Here in the cool waters of Marin the seeds are planted and harvested, then the oysters are opened and packed fresh in glass jars.

From here they are shipped on a truck to various wholesalers in the Bay Area. Johnson's supplies close to 85 per cent of all the oysters in San Francisco, the owners claim. And they are never more than three days old when they reach the market.

In the winter the Marin firm sells an average of 6,000 jars a week; in the summer, 3,500 jars. That old superstition about not eating oysters in months without an "r" cuts into summer sales. The 12-ounce jars average eight medium-sized oysters or 10 small ones.

BUSINESS IS so good, in fact, that the Johnsons can't meet the demand. So convinced is the elder Johnson of the potential of his business that he plans to incorporate and is expanding as fast as he can get the money. "I think we can produce $750,000 worth of oysters in this area," he says confidently.

Conditions for growing oysters in Marin waters are so favorable that there is a "terrific return on seeds," Johnson says. The company harvests 60 to 80 gallons to a case of seed, where in more northern waters 30 gallons is considered good.

San Francisco Bay, incidentally, is so polluted that oystering is not carried on there. Drake's Bay is one of the cleanest bays anywhere because so few people live in the area.

Oyster seeds — no bigger than the head of a match — come some five to 50 on a shell. A case would contain about 50,000 seeds.

Planting is done the last part of March or first part of April on the mud flats of the bays. When the "babies" are six months old, they are moved to "fattening beds" or the shells containing the seeds are broken and scattered to help the young oysters develop better.

The seeds feed on microscopic sea life and find more food on some mud flats than others. Rate of growth can be controlled by planting on different types of ground and this ensures a year-round harvesting.

In general, though, oysters are harvested about 16 months after planting.

IN ADDITION to the Japanese oysters, the Johnsons get about 1,200 bushels a year of adult oysters from Chesapeake Bay, shipped here on a refrigerator truck. These slower growing oysters are placed on beds and held until a San Francisco wholesaler needs them. The Eastern oyster is smaller and milder than the Pacific variety, and more of a delicacy.

In 1958 the Johnsons also brought in some Olympia oysters from Eureka and succeeded in getting natural reproduction here.

The oysterman is not without his problems. Stingarees and crabs are the two enemies of oysters. Wooden fences are placed around the beds to keep out the stingarees.

There are battles between the monsters of the sea and the oystermen. On one day the Johnsons killed 46 stingarees along the fence.

Harvesting is done when the tides are low enough for the oystermen to reach the mud beds. At high water the scows piled with baskets of oysters are brought in to the landing and the oysters brought into the processing plant on a conveyor belt.

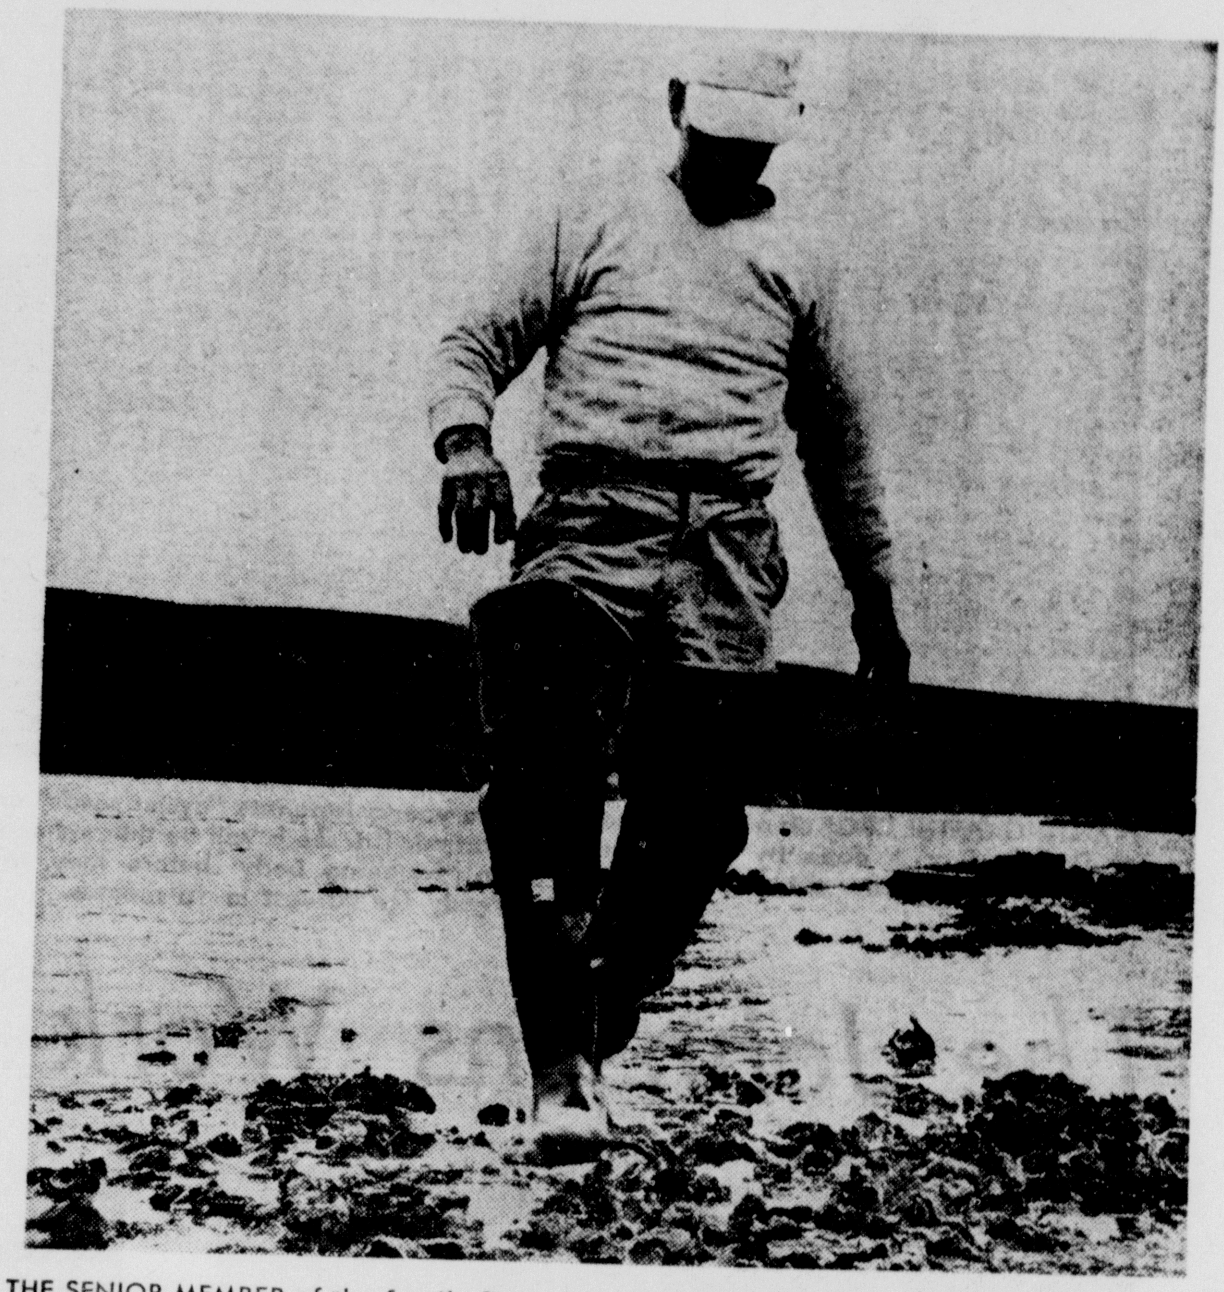
Inside about a half dozen employees open the oysters with knives. Then the oysters go into the grading room where they are washed and graded into jars. Jars are capped and dated, then placed into boxes for shipping.

THE ELDER Johnson for six years was director of Coast Oyster Co. in Japan. Before turning to oystering he was a wheat farmer in Joplin, Mo.

But one day he decided he had had enough of farming. He picked the farthest spot from Joplin that he could go on this continent, and it turned out to be Ocean Park, Wash.

There he began his 21-year career in the oyster business.

"Oystering just appealed to me. It still does," he grins.



THE SENIOR MEMBER of the family firm of the Johnson Oyster Co., Charles Johnson, makes an inspection of one of his oyster beds on Drake Bay. Johnson gave up wheat farming to become an oyster man 21 years ago, and has never regretted his decision. Other Independent-Journal photos of Marin's rapid-growing oyster industry can be seen on Pages M-12 and M-13.

CHARLES JOHNSON admires some of the tasty oysters which thrive in his Marin beds. They're better eating than oysters grown further north, he says.

The Johnsons Work Their Drake's Bay 'Farm'

PLANTING OF THE CROP on a muddy beach of Drake's Bay is done by the Johnson family as they scatter the shells to which the young Japanese "oyster seeds" are attached. The seeds will be thinned or taken to "fattening beds" before they will be ready for harvest in 16 months.

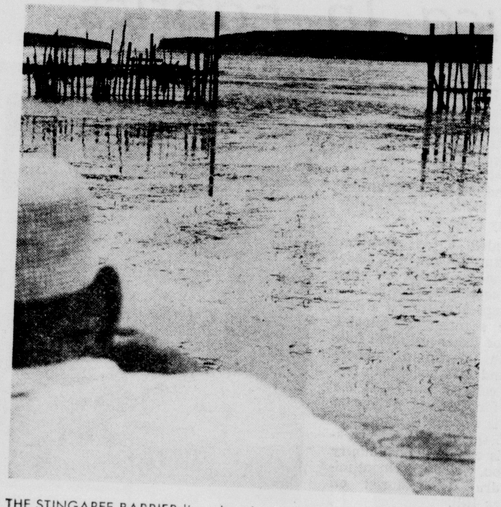
EXAMINING the growth of a bed of Japanese seeded oysters are Ben Johnson, left, and Tom Johnson, right. Some of these oysters will be harvested this summer after 16 months of growth. Air powered boat in distance provides low draft high speed transportation for the oystermen in shallow waters of Drake's Bay.

THE JOHNSON "NAVY" is represented by a flat-bottomed air powered boat and a small open boat. The corner of the empty shell barge is at lower left. Here Tom Johnson wades ashore to the dock area.

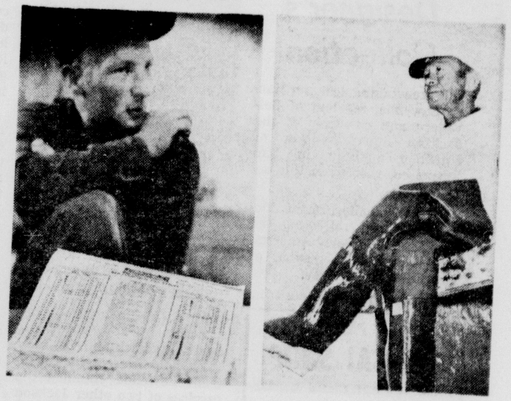
HUGE OYSTER SHELLS on the Johnson dock are playthings for an employe's young kitten. Largest oysters are about the size of a hand. Cool waters of Drake's Bay provide the right temperature to grow firm-bodied oysters.

THE FIRST STEP in processing is the opening of the shell. Here Henrietta Hetrick of Pt. Reyes Station scoops out the interior of a shell. Trick is to cut small muscle at end of shell, or shell is almost unopenable.

PACKING ROOM action finds Donna Gitchell of Inverness setting jars of packed oysters on cement table before they are to be sealed. Picture is taken from shell opening room from where the final product is passed through to the washer.



THE STINGAREE BARRIER lies ahead of the air boat as the Johnsons leave the inner beds to gather oysters from the outer areas of Drake's Bay. Beneath the seaweed covered water a subsurface gate allows boats to pass. Nearly straight ahead is the spot believed to have been the place where Sir Francis Drake in 1579 landed and did repair work on his ships.



OYSTERMEN Ben Johnson, left, and Charles Johnson, right, regulate their lives by the time and tide tables. Most work on the beds must be done at low tide when oysters are exposed from water.

GRADING the washed oysters is done by Donna Gitchell, one of nearly a dozen employes hired by the Johnsons during the peak summer harvesting period. Grading controls the size of the packed oysters and eliminates small, broken or soft oysters.

TOM JOHNSON snaps down the lids on a small portion of a day's production of bottled oysters. The sea animals are packed in water and refrigerated.

TOM JOHNSON peers into a barge loaded with empty oyster shells from this year's production. In distance on the bay is a future bed area which is being filled in with old shells to reduce the water depth.

HEARTY COUNTRY gingham checks lend a delightful air of informality and warmth to any decor. Called Oklahoma Plaid, this design is part of the Americana collection of decorative fabrics developed by Harry Lawenda of Belvedere for Sears, Roebuck and Co. The plaid goes well with Americana's solid-color Salem Tweed.

SEVERAL OF THE handsome Americana fabrics can be seen in this picture. Included are Allegheny, based on Pennsylvania folk-art; Saratoga, a portrayal of the carriage trade; Country Auction, a carefree whirl of colonial bric-a-brac; Oklahoma Plaid, a gingham check; and Salem Tweed, a solid color richly textured fabric.

CHARMING AND as gaily colorful as an old-fashioned quilting bee, that's Patchwork, another of the Americana decorative fabrics. Patchwork, combining the spirit of the traditional with modern color and design, lends itself to shorty draperies and quilted coverlets as used in this bedroom decor.

History Of America In Fabrics

Belvedere Designer's Collection

Prize-winning designer Harry Lawenda, resident of Belvedere and co-owner of the Jackson Square firm of Kneedler-Fauchere in San Francisco, was given this assignment:

Create a collection of decorator fabrics reflecting the rich history of early America, and this country's spirit of congenial informality.

The assignment came from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

To help him in its fulfillment Lawenda obtained the services of two other Jackson Square decorators — Marget Larsen and Tom Roberts.

The result of their efforts: The recently introduced Americana fabrics, hailed by Lawenda and Sears as offering design motifs that have captured the charm and vitality of this nation's past.

A VERMONT military drum, fitting symbol of American tradition, is one of the many patterns chosen for the Americana fabrics. It appears on Bunker Hill, particularly pleasing in a child's room.

THE FABRICS, interpreted in draperies, bedspreads, draperies, slipcovers, pillows, coverlets and dust ruffles, are described as handsomely at home with both Early American and modern furniture groups, blending beautifully into any room decor.

Included in the collection are textured solids in a choice of 18 modern colors, and nine color-coordinated prints — each representative of a particular segment of colonial life. For instance, Dutch folk art can be seen in Cumberland and Allegheny, both festively colored prints that are ideal for quilting. Oklahoma Plaid is a country gingham check. Quaint colonial bric-a-brac is embodied in Country Auction, while a Vermont militia drum is featured on Bunker Hill.

Fabrics are 100 per cent cotton, washable and drip dry.

Designer Lawenda resides at 51 Peninsula Road with his wife and five children. He has been associated with the display department of Lord and Taylor, New York; the decorating department of Modernage, New York; and style coordination, Frank Newman Co., San Francisco.

He was an independent interior decorator when in 1950 he became co-owner of Kneedler-Fauchere, founded by his wife, the former Dorothy Kneedler. It was Dorothy Lawenda who is credited with eight years ago beginning the movement that resulted in making Jackson Square one of the leading wholesale decorative centers in the world.

THEIR FIRM pioneered in the importation of Oriental wallcoverings, styled for the American market.

Lawenda's designs have been shown in museum exhibitions throughout the country including the San Francisco Museum of Art, De Young Museum, and the California Palace of Fine Arts; Baltimore Museum; College of Fine and Applied Arts, Champaign, Ill.; Long Beach Municipal Art Center, and Lowe Art Gallery of the University of Miami, Miami, Fla.

Recognition the Marin resident has been accorded include the 1955 first award for wallcovering design, a first award for lighting design in 1951, and a first award in furniture design in 1950, all from the Institute of Decorators.

CHARLESTON is designed to compliment any Early American or traditional bedroom setting. It's a new heirloom-style bedspread, part of the Americana collection, and available in a choice of five colors.

THREE OF THE American fabrics developed by Harry Lawenda of Belvedere and two other decorators are used most effectively here. They are Allegheny, Oklahoma Plaid and Salem Tweed. All fabric are lightweight, machine washable cotton.

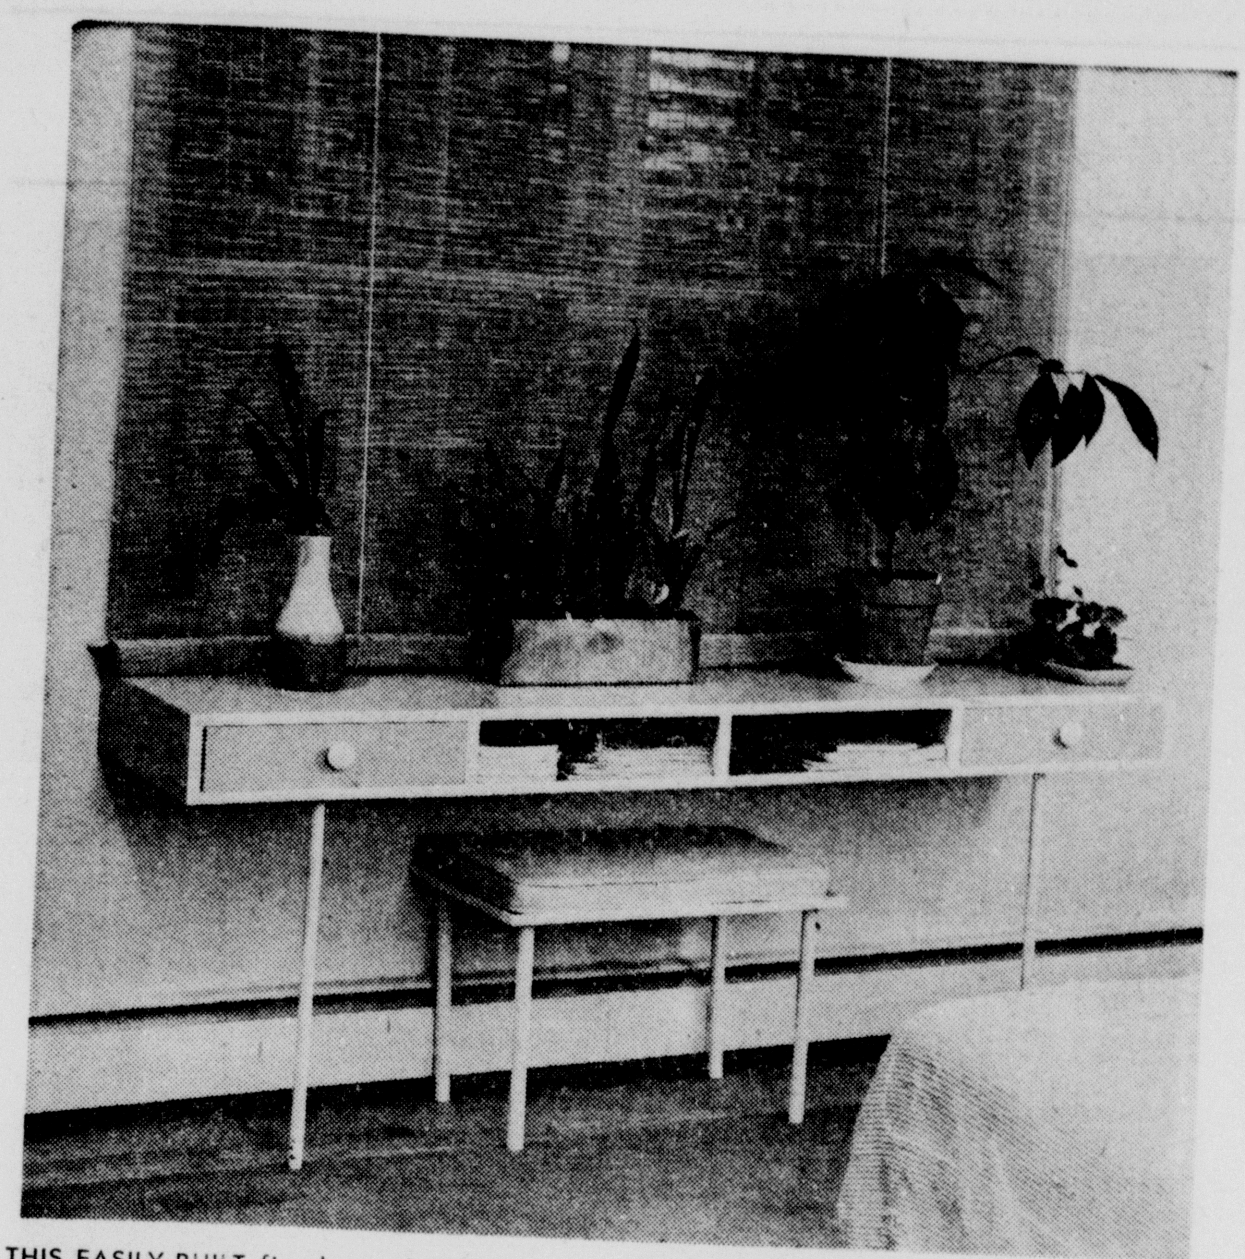
Build This Table With Crafted Look



THIS EASILY-BUILT fir plywood table is an attractive and welcome addition to any room in the house. For instance, here it adds space and style to a bedroom. There is none of that "home-made" look.

Many do-it-yourself projects have a "home made" look. But here's a simple table which almost any amateur can build with style.

This multi-use table covers those awkward blank spaces on walls in various parts of the house. It makes a well-proportioned base for a tall table lamp. It also goes nicely under a window, where it can hold ivy, geraniums, philodendrons, or other greenery.

Other uses for this versatile table might be as a desk in the den or bedroom, or as a buffet supper base in the living-dining area.

The table won't damage the budget. It can be built from one panel of three-quarter inch fir plywood and four 25-inch lengths of three-quarter inch pipe. You will also need two scraps of hardboard for the drawer bottoms.

You can build it free-standing on four legs, or anchor one side to the wall and use only two legs. Its six-foot length and six-inch depth give it a slender but massive appearance.

After the pieces are cut from the plywood panel, they are put together with glue and eight-penny finishing nails. For assembly, fasten the bottom to the ends, then put on the back and add the dividers. The top goes on last. In finishing the unit, paint the inside of the compartments before the top goes on.

When buying the fir plywood, ask for the familiar A-D grade, INT-DFPA, which is available at most lumber yards.

For a free plan which shows how to build the multi-use table, write Douglas Fir Plywood Assn., Tacoma 2, Wash.

Two-By-Four, It's Humble But Versatile

One of the most versatile and readily available pieces of lumber the professional carpenter or do-it-yourself enthusiast can find is the simple two-by-four. Though it is humble and hard-working, it also can add real beauty to many a project both indoors and out.

The Western Pine Association points out that though many two-by-fours are used in the framework of homes, there are dozens of other uses for them. Homeowners might well give thought to the projects that will use two-by-fours to advantage.

Take, for example, some of the outdoor possibilities. Two-by-fours are used in many fences and not only as the basic framework. Sometimes they are cut into very short lengths and then fastened row upon row in an open pattern that gives something of the effect of grillework. This design can serve as a pleasant accent in a limited area.

At other times lengths of two-by-four can be installed vertically in a frame so that the effect is similar to a venetian blind stood on its side. The home-owner who would like to get a little more elaborate can work out a geometric pattern.

There are also many possibilities when it comes to planning sun screens and sun shades. Here, again, homeowners might try creating their own individual designs with two-by-fours, and these will act as "ladders" on which plants and vines can climb.

Painting Your Pool? Here Are Some Hints

Thinking of adding a new bit of swimming pool scenery to the Marin landscape?

Actually whether or not Marin residents are planning new pools or just considering improving their older ones they might find it useful to know something about the paints related to such pools.

In general it appears that a painted swimming pool is easier to keep clean and sanitary than an unpainted one and is often more attractive. Paint smooths rough concrete surfaces and reduces the chances of scratches and abrasions. In addition paint keeps concrete pools from chipping and metal ones from corroding.

Paint for concrete must be resistant to the alkali present in concrete which attacks ordinary oil-based paints. It must also be able to resist the chemicals used to purify the water.

The most widely used and successful paints for concrete pools are solvent thinned rubber resin paints, usually referred to as swimming pool paints. Sometimes these are called chlorinated rubber paints. There are also solvent thinned paints containing vinyl resins which must be applied by an expert. Both types contain strong solvents and should be used over oil paints with caution.

Another type of alkali resistant paint is Portland-cement paint which can be applied to wet surfaces. This paint must be kept wet until it is cured, and the easiest way to accomplish this is to fill the pool shortly after painting.

Steel swimming pools require a different treatment. They must be given a first coat of marine anti-corrosive primer, this to be followed by a topcoat designed for marine use that will stand continuous immersion. Solvent-thinned rubber resin paints are recommended.

Proper surface preparation is essential. The sides and bottom should be scrubbed to remove oil, dirt, algae and foreign material.

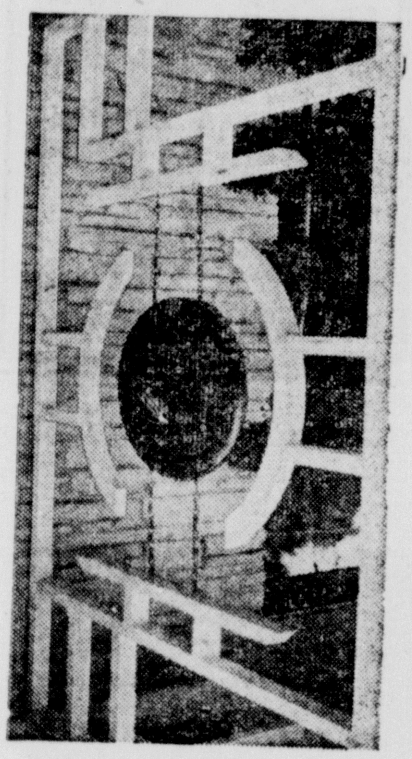
Use a stiff bristled brush and household detergent. Then hose the pool thoroughly. If what appears to be dirt doesn't wash off, it may be that a mold is present. Destroy it with a household bleach. Again hose it clean.

Another necessary operation is etching the concrete in previously unpainted pools with an acid wash in order to provide a roughened surface that will give a good mechanical bond. Muriatic acid in a 10 per cent solution is recommended. Be sure to wear goggles and rubber boots.

Where old paint is in poor condition it should be removed by sand blasting, but faded paint need not be removed. In the case of steel pools, all rust should be removed when the sand blasting is being done and the pool should be primed immediately with the marine anti-corrosive primer previously recommended.

The method of applying the paint depends on the smoothness of the surface; for a concrete pool that is not extremely smooth, a spray or brush will do a better job than a roller, but a roller will lay down a heavier coat of paint faster on a smooth surface. A spray will penetrate pits and holes in the surface better.

It's a good idea to use a skid resistant paint on walkways and around the pool.



MOST OF this decorative screen was made from simple two-by-fours. The curved sections, however, were cut from a two-by-twelve plank, and the central disk from a solid piece of lumber. The wood was painted in contrasting black and white to dramatize the entrance to the home.

INTERIOR WALLS of concrete masonry are one way a homeowner can achieve individuality in his house. Variations in the size and texture of the block, in wall patterns, the tooling of the mortar joints, and the painting also contribute to this distinctive feeling. Here masonry units four by eight by 16 inches are stacked in a running bond pattern in the long wall. The background wall is composed of eight by eight by eight corner units. Vertical mortar joints have been smoothed flush with the wall and the horizontal joints have been tooled to give long, unbroken horizontal lines. Both the horizontal and vertical joints in the low background wall have been tooled for emphasis.

Find Life Of Water Heater Related To Size Of Tank

What effect does the size of a water heater have on its life?

This is a question that comes up many times a day in Marin County as home owners find themselves faced with replacement of old or defective water heaters.

The battle of theories between buying a small unit and perhaps operating it at a higher temperature and purchasing a large heater to be run at a lower temperature seems to resolve in favor of the larger water heater.

Reason: a water heater storage tank of generous size will last longer.

This information comes from a bulletin entitled "Performance Characteristics of Domestic Water Heating Equipment" issued by the Building Research Institute of the National Academy of Sciences.

"It is widely recognized that premature storage tank failure will occur when the storage tank is undersized," the bulletin says.

"The more frequently hot water is withdrawn from a tank, the more often the internal tank surface is exposed to a fresh supply of dissolved oxygen. The rate of corrosion is related to the amount of oxygen available to the metal surfaces in the tank."

The bulletin also points out that the rate of corrosion increases with a rise in the storage temperature.

"Storage-type water heating equipment should not be operated at a thermostat setting exceeding 150 F. regardless of fuel," the bulletin advises.

"The minimum size tank of automatic storage-type water heating equipment should not be less than 30 gallons."

The bulletin also calls attention to the need for protection with a pressure relief valve and either a temperature relief valve or high temperature energy cut-off, irrespective of the heating media.

Fertilizer Too Rare To Sell, Gardeners Can Make It Free

Whatever the abundance of fertilizer and soil conditioners in Marin nurseries and garden shops, there is one nearly priceless such product you can't purchase.

Yet gardeners can provide themselves with this valuable material virtually free of cost.

The material is compost.

Actually, compost is easy to make. The thing that prevents it from being offered for sale is that it would be difficult to manufacture in commercial quantities because of the nature of the raw materials involved and the length of time consumed in processing.

The raw materials are largely weeds, grass clippings, and tree leaves, the very things you have to get rid of anyway. The equipment needed for manufacture can be as little as none at all. The time you have to spend on the job just about equals the time it would take you to dispose of the waste in any other way.

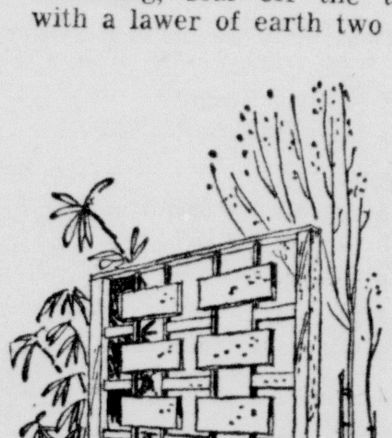
All you need do is pile up these waste materials in an out-of-the-way spot and wait for them to decompose. The best way to handle this is to provide a bottomless frame four feet square and about the same height, or build one out of cement blocks without using mortar.

The box will indeed appear to be bottomless, for astonishing amounts of leaves, clippings and weeds can be poured in, with a full box melting down to nearly empty time and again as the waste wilts and flattens.

When you've added a lot and it has shrunk down, it is useful to cover it with a thin layer of earth, continuing to add new material right on top. From time to time give the pile a good soaking, for it takes moisture to promote decomposition.

When the pile nearly fills the container, even after shrinking, seal off the top with a lawer of earth two or three inches deep and wait for time to pass. In about six months you may open the pile and examine the contents. If there are still recognizable leaves and other material, and the compost does not look like rich soil, turn the whole pile with a spade, seal it off again, water and wait another period of months. When the contents look like rich, dark soil they are ready to use.

Compost is used as a top dressing for lawns, as a highly superior potting mixture, and as fertilizer and soil conditioner to be turned under in your flower beds when spading. It is both rich and absolutely safe, and its effects are very long-lasting. But compost used before it is fully aged, while useful as a soil conditioner, acts as a user rather than a supplier of nitrogen while rotting continues in the soil, so wait until it looks like soil—then have fun!



A DECORATIVE panel such as this can lend style to any garden. Made of long-wearing western red cedar, this screen shields a driveway from the backyard. Wooden panels like this are easy to design and make.

Choose Foliage For Color As Well As For Blossoms

There's more to a plant than the bloom, might be the observation of some experienced gardeners.

They point out that in Marin and other areas the possibilities of using colorful foliage as well as colorful blooms will pay off with an attractive garden. Also the color that marks a healthy plant will be of more permanent value than merely colorful blooms.

Generally it is felt the abundance of foliage in any garden should be green. We have conditioned ourselves to associate green with the out-of-doors and are refreshed by the association. But too much green can lead to monotony.

Consider other possibilities: the grays and yellows and reds- to-purples which stand out in garden shows and in so many well-designed private gardens. Lay out a garden plan of your own and "color" in the areas you could change.

Visit a nursery and check the colors with which you can work. Pay special attention to grays and silver-grays such as English Lavender, Dusty Miller, Bush Germander and the compact Bush Morning Glory. These and many others pay a dividend in bloom.

Next look for shrubs whose foliage contrasts with these grays. Reddish colors are excellent here. Dwarf Japanese Maples are ideal in even the smallest gardens and their larger counterparts may be added as space permits. Purple Leaf Plums are good backdrops and lavish in their spring bloom.

There are yellow and near white tones to be found in other shrubs. There are no colors that "clash" when properly used — or when they please you.

You Can Still Pick Your Plants

Shopping for plants in containers is enjoyable.

So if you forget to plant that bareroot rose, tree (or whatever) last winter — don't fret. Your nurseryman has anticipated the needs of the absent-minded gardener. All you need do is to "window shop" at your local nursery and make your selection. Follow the nurseryman's planting instructions; then reap the harvest of your ready-to-flourish plant.

WATCH FOR OAK MOTHS
Small white moths, hovering erratically near Oaks—particularly Live Oaks—are second brood of California Oak Moth. Especially noticeable at end of day, moths will soon be laying eggs . . . which then hatch into leaf-eating caterpillars.
Oak Moth spray can be combined with other sprays, providing important protection for valuable trees. Call for free inspection.

CHECKING the CHANNELS

With HAL CASE

WE THOUGHT we had heard of most of the things that pu. us in a daze. Seems though we're fortunate enough to have escaped the "Dogma Daze."

The "Dogma Daze" is an affliction of Russian television, according to Bob Cummings who recently returned from a short business-vacation trip to the Soviet Union.

"One of the many bonuses we enjoy as Americans is the diversity of our television fare," he said on return.

During his 10 days in Russia, he said he wasn't surprised to learn that TV there is seldom more than a platform for the expounding of political dogma.

"True, an occasional musical or dance program is thrown in to satisfy the entertainment appetite, but that's about the size of it.

"I thought about American TV fans while I was there. I wondered how they would react if they had to dispense with the many dramatic programs, the sports and variety shows and the frequent specials. I'll bet the ratings would look like Marilyn Monroe's batting average if she were suddenly inserted into the N.Y. Yankee lineup."

"It was difficult for the Russians I met to believe that we have such TV program variety in the United States. It was incredible to them that in our country we produce dramatic shows especially for the medium. Just as astounding was the fact that we are not limited to choice of program and that we have several to choose from any hour of the day or night."

Cummings said that when the people he met in Leningrad and Moscow learned that he was a television star, they bombarded him with questions.

"They's tremendously interested in what we are doing in this field. Most of them expressed the wish that they could share our good fortune," he noted.

"Oh, the Russians are not bereft of entertainment," Cummings explained. "They have their theaters, music halls and sports arenas. But the idea of being able to enjoy the variety we enjoy in their homes is what appealed to them most.

"The big difference is we have it and they don't."

THE FIRESTONE Tire and Rubber Co. will sponsor an expanded weekly series of "Eyewitness to History" programs over CBS starting next fall.

The company has presented 27 "Eyewitness to History" programs since August, 1959. Next season it will present the weekly "Eyewitness" programs every Friday throughout the year at 10:30 - 11 p.m.

In its new schedule of regular appearances, "Eyewitness to History" will cover a single significant news story each week. The program will use live, taped and filmed coverage, with reports and commentary by CBS newsmen around the world. It is designed to constitute a new major source of information for the American public.

During its first year, the series covered such events as Nikita Khrushchev's tour of the United States, President Eisenhower's journeys to Europe, Asia and the Far East, and General Charles de Gaulle's American visit.

ADMIRERS OF Sir Winston Churchill and his "Memoirs of World War II" will have the opportunity of seeing a lengthy series of television portrayals of the "Memoirs" in the next year over ABC.

Quentin Reynolds, William L. Shirer and Sir Arthur Bryant are among 23 writers signed for the 26 half-hour documentary dramas, based on the six-volumes.

Signed by Edgar Peterson, producer of the series, to write the first seven scripts are Robert Lewis Shayon, TV producer and writer and currently radio and television critic for the "Saturday Review"; playwright and novelist Victor Wolfson, Quentin Reynolds, A. J. Russell, Max Ehrlich, and Edmund North, writer of the current movie, "Sink the Bismark."

The British writers that to date have been signed are historian Sir Arthur Bryant, author of the "Diaries of Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke," screen writers Peter Fleming, T.E.B. Clarke, and novelist-playwright Constantine Fitzgibbon.

JACKIE GLEASON will star in two specials, one 90-minute comedy drama and one hour-long variety program, during the 1960-1961 season on CBS.

Gleason's first special, "The Million Dollar Incident," has been adapted by A. J. Russell, Sydney Zelinka and Walter Stone from an original story by Gleason. Gordon Duff produces and Norman Jewison directs. The show, will be taped in New York.

In the 90-minute comedy, Gleason appears as himself and is kidnapped and held for a million dollars ransom. The kidnaper, an imaginative sort, insists that no other party but the television network pay the ransom. What the network decides to do, and what happens to Gleason, imparts both suspense and comedy to a story that Gleason, tongue in cheek, insists could have happened.

Gleason's second special, a variety program, will be taped in the early fall.

"ALL-FAMILY CLASSICS," a series of six two-hour dramatic specials based on some of the world's greatest novels, will be presented next season on the CBS network. David Susskind will produce the series. Each program will be presented in two installments of one hour each, from 7:30-8:30 p.m., in successive nights.

Stories under consideration for the series include adaptations of Charles Dickens' novels "David Copperfield" and "Great Expectations"; "The Man in the Iron Mask" and "The Three Musketeers," both by Alexandre Dumas; Jack Londons "The Sea Wolf," Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped."

Two of the specials will be presented in the fall and four after the first of the year.

HERE'S HOW ONE network, CBS, will be set up for its coverage of the Republican National Convention in Chicago's International Ampitheater when Congressman Walter Judd of Minnesota, keynoter, raises his arms to call for order on Monday. In cutaway area, anchor man Walter Cronkite, front left, cues the switch to cameras and microphones covering the floor. Behind his studio is the newsroom. To the right of the anchor studio are central news desk and master control room, heart of the CBS operation. In master control room technicians have thrown switches connecting the network with the convention broadcast. At extreme right in separate studio Betty Furness rehearses a commercial. And in front of the building a CBS mobile unit prepares to interview a GOP lady and her elephant friend.
